BOMB EXPLODES IN VATICAN GARDENS

Today

Just a Little Better.
France Wants Safety.
An Old Man Goes Alone.
Harvard's Teaching Plan.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

EVERYBODY WAS just a LITTLE bit happier yesterday. Stocks were a little better here, German bonds were stronger. You could borrow money for speculating in Wall street at 1¼ per cent a year. But even so, only 1,500,000 shares were bought and sold.

SOMETHING IS to be done about the crisis in Germany and other European countries. France, Britain and Uncle Sam, represented by Secretary of State Stimson, will hold a conference in London on Monday, and see what can be done to help the weak brothers.

In addition to France, Great Britain and the United States, the London conference will include Italy, Belgium and Germany. We, needless to say, are expected to bring our pocketbook, and everybody will be polite—until later.

FRANCE IS understood to insist that whatever else is done, there must be provision for "French safety."

Germany has great intelligence, power, population, scientific ability. The French never lost their desire to beat, and, if possible, destroy Germany, after the French defeat in 1870. It is reasonable to assume that Germans have their minds on avenging, some day, the defeat of the Great War.

Every American, if he wishes, may add his pious hope for French safety, on condition that nobody tries to tie up the United States with agreements or guarantees for the future. One thing at a time is enough.

IN A JAIL at Santa Fe, N. M., a cell is prepared for Albert B. Fall, once senator from New Mexico, later in President Harding's Cabinet. The courts accepted as proved that oil reserves of the United States were bought and sold criminally, so an old man, broken in health, not far from the grave, convicted of SELLING, must go to prison. He goes ALONE.

What of those that did the BUYING?

THE PRESIDENT has power to pardon the man convicted. His jailer can release him for good conduct at the end of four months. Few would oppose his pardon, or early release.

No one on earth has power to take from him the shadow of the prison doorway, or relieve this country of the disgraceful fact that its prisons are not made for VERY RICH MEN.

DEAN HANFORD, of Harvard University, says students are "not spoon-fed." They are expected to be responsible for their own education, and, to a great degree, educate themselves. Truly, Dean Hanford says:

"The most important type of education is self-education. The student grasps, retains and masters what he works out for himself."

To educate means "to lead out," from e out, and duco, to lead. All that you can do for a boy is to bring out of him, to "lead out," that which is in him. Stuffing him with ready-made information does little good.

SOMETHING NEW in New York's Tammany Hall will interest friends across the ocean. Albert Marinelli, an Italian, first of his race to lead a great Tammany Hall district, takes the place once held by "Big Tim" Sullivan.

A grand parade, with red fire, was arranged for the Second Assembly District last night, with pictures of George Washington, Mayor Walker, John F. Curry, Tammany chief, a large and convincing yellow tiger, to represent Tammany, and a picture of Big Tim himself.

BIG TIM, a powerful leader before his mind gave way, and a train killed him, would be amazed if he could see an Italian in his place. His cousin, "Little Tim" Sullivan, would be less surprised.

He said to this writer, long ago:

"You can't hold your place in Tammany now unless you can climb a pole and fix a clothesline for an Italian or Jewish woman."

IN BUCKINGHAM PALACE, good Queen Mary had a grand ball last night, first in that palace since 1924.

Two thousand young men, "that have not had much amusement lately," went to the party.

The music, chosen by Queen Mary, according to custom, with some advice from her son, the Prince of Wales, had a United States flavor. Titles of the dance music included: "I'm Alone Because I Love You," "Girl of a Million Dreams," "Hawaiian Stars are Gleaming" and "Peanut Vendor," all a long way from the "Blue Danube."

IN RUSSIA, as elsewhere, the boss, when he amounts to anything, usually works longer hours than his subordinates. Stalin, absolute ruler, has established a new kind of week, with a day of rest every five days, for laborers and mechanics working only about six hours in 24. Stalin himself works 18 hours, beginning early in the day, finishing after midnight.

Nevertheless, he finds time for chess, and always plays with the black chessmen.

Another, Genghis Khan, that ruled the Mongols and many other nations 700 years ago,

Bullet Missed!

CATHERINE FLOYD HUBBARD

Mrs. Hubbard, 5514 Center avenue, narrowly missed by a .32-caliber bullet that shattered her windshield while she was driving in Baum boulevard near Roup street. Police suspect boy target-shooters.

BULLET MISSES WOMAN ARTIST

Police today were of the opinion that boys at target practice fired a bullet which shattered the windshield of an automobile and narrowly missed wounding Mrs. Catherine Floyd Hubbard, an artist, of 5514 Center avenue, while she was driving in Baum boulevard, near Roup street. She recently returned home from California, where she visited for several months.

Leaning back in the seat while she stopped at the intersection of Baum boulevard and Roup street, Mrs. Hubbard heard a crash and was sprinkled with glass from the windshield. Believing that she was in the midst of a shooting affray, Mrs. Hubbard sped from the scene and did not stop until she had turned into Negley avenue.

Seeing two policemen in an automobile, Mrs. Hubbard called to them and informed them of the shooting. They declared that a 32-caliber bullet had sped past her head and struck the windshield.

Registration Commission to Purge Assessment List; 29 'Residents' on Bare Lot

Registration Commission investigators announced today that they have uncovered wholesale padding of assessment lists to pave the way for registration of "ghosts" for the fall elections.

Thirty-five investigators, working under Peter Connors, former city detective, have been carrying on the probe since the new Registration Commission was appointed July 6, according to Ray C. Dever, in charge of the commission office.

John McK. Morrow, chairman of the commission, said today:

"I know nothing of such investigators."

Connors said:

"Some amazing things have been discovered and the investigation is far from finished."

It was said that in some of the independent wards the assessment lists have been increased as much as 70 per cent.

Some of the most startling cases reported by the investigators were:

Assessment of 25 persons as living on a vacant lot.

Assessment of 29 persons as living on an auto parking lot.

Discovery that the same person had been assessed nine times under nine names.

3 Rob Bank, Kill Deputy In Chase

BUCKLEY, Ill., July 17.—(AP.)—Three men robbed the Buckley State Bank of $5,000 today and shot Deputy Sheriff Henry Ennen dead before they were surrounded in a corn field.

The men locked two bankers and a customer in the vault and fled northward with officers in pursuit. They wrecked their car in a ditch and were covered by Ennen's pistol, but he had exhausted every cartridge. They killed him and took cover in a field as other deputies and citizens came up.

BILLY RUPE, 8 . . . . . HIS FIRST MEAL IN HIS NEW HOME

Billy, sinking his front tooth into tasty bread and jam, finishing up his 'tatoes and meat, food the like of which he hasn't seen often since his father, Herbert, lost his job a year ago. Dad offered Billy to anyone who'd give him a good home, quickly got 60 requests, sent him to Mr. and Mrs. Grover Hendricks, Haysville.

BOY, 7, HAPPY OVER ADOPTION

Billy Rupe, 7, motherless Edgeworth boy, whose father asked that someone adopt his son who was able to give him a good home, was in the care of happy foster-parents today.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Grover Hendricks, of South avenue, Haysville. Hendricks is employed by the McPherson Company, contractors, Edgeworth.

This morning Billy appeared joyous, in his new home—far different from the shack to which he had been accustomed, knowing his father was only a few miles away.

With his foster mother providing him a bounteous breakfast today, Billy said:

"I like it here with my new mamma and papa. I'm going to get some clothes and start to Sunday School."

His new mother said:

"He seems like a very nice little boy and I am in love with him already. He hasn't any clothes whatever, but I am going to town today and get him everything he needs."

Hendricks said he and his wife had been lonesome since their grandchildren moved away and that they had been looking for a child to adopt.

Billy's mother died when he was a year old. His father for the last year had been out of work until a week ago, when Burkholder gave him a job on the road. Rupe said he felt he was unable to rear the lad in a proper manner and broadcast a plea for aid.

The Hendricks have a married daughter, but no children at home.

U. S. CUP STARS WIN, LOSE

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, PARIS, July 17.—(AP.)—America pulled even with England today in the first two matches of the Davis Cup interzone tennis series when Frank Shields hammered out a victory over Fred Perry, 10-8, 6-4, 6-2, after Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, the British ace, had vanquished Sydney Wood, Jr., 2-6, 6-0, 8-6, 7-5.

The battle to determine France's challenger for the world championship tennis trophy will be continued tomorrow with the doubles match, in which the American team of John Van Ryn and George M. Lott, Jr., will oppose Fred Perry and George Hughes. The final two singles will be played Sunday.

Lloyd George, Rival Good Pals at Home

CHURT, England, July 17.—(AP.)—Two good neighbors of this community are likely to get into a scrap every time they go to London. Lloyd George has frequently felt the sting of Philip Snowden's verbal darts across the benches of Parliament. Lloyd George says:

"But down here we're good pals."

PARIS PLANS LOAN TO REICH

Ready to Pour Huge Sum Into Germany; Bruening Visit to France Awaited

Developments in German crisis:

1—France considers $200,000,000 loan to bolster Reich's finances.

2—President Hoover appoints Secretaries Stimson and Mellon as "full-fledged" delegates to London parley on Germany, thus abandoning America's isolation policy.

3—Reichstag elders reject Communists' demand for extra session.

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

PARIS, July 17.—French aid for the impoverished Reich—to the tune of $150,000,000 or $200,000,000—is now being considered by the government of Premier Pierre Laval, with the likelihood that definite decision will be reached shortly to pour this huge sum into the gaping coffers of Germany, International News Service learned from a reliable source today.

Heralding a speedy solution of the dire financial crisis in Germany that has had serious repercussions throughout the world, the Quai D'Orsay is gradually retreating from its harsh demands for political concessions in exchange for the loan. Before many days have passed, the European atmosphere is expected to be cleared of the threat of bankruptcy and chaos which has overhung Germany and Central Europe.

Revelation of France's more conciliatory attitude came a short while before Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius, of Germany, were due to arrive in Paris for a conference of ministers called by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald.

LONDON SEES HITCH

LONDON, July 17.—(INS.)—An indication that all is not yet clear sailing at Paris, where the German chancellor, Bruening, will arrive today to negotiate with French officials for a new long-term German loan, was thrown out here today.

London evening newspapers published a statement, obviously from inspired sources, declaring the British government will not view with favor any proposal for foreign control over German customs collections. Such a proposal is generally understood to be one of the French conditions to participating in a new loan to Germany.

Meanwhile, financial experts assigned to work out details of the Hoover debt holiday met for an hour today and then adjourned until after the confer-

MRS. VIRGINIA R. COSTELLO

WOMAN QUIZZED IN AUTO DEATH

Mrs. Virginia Robertson Costello, of Hawkins avenue, North Braddock, a passenger in the automobile in which Michael McDonough, also of North Braddodk, was killed when it overturned on William Penn Highway near Monroeville, July 8, was questioned today by Coronor W. J. McGregor.

She denied police reports that she had accused McDonough of being the driver of the machine and later changed her story naming James G. Alexander, of 566 Correy avenue, North Braddock, as the driver. She said she was unable to explain the accident.

Alexander, driver of the machine, who surrendered to the coroner yesterday, was at liberty today in $2,000 bond.

POPE PIUS AND GUARDS STARTLED

Mussolini, Angered, Blames Foes; Sexton Prevents St. Peter's Church Ruin

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

ROME, July 17.—An ingeniously constructed time bomb, believed to have been planted by anti-Fascist agitators, exploded with a terrific detonation in the gardens of the Vatican early today, awakening Pope Pius XI from his sleep and causing alarm among the papal guards intrusted with the safekeeping of His Holiness.

The infernal machine had been placed in the ancient church of St. Peter's, shrine of Catholicism, near the tomb of Pope Clement XIII. Had it exploded in the edifice, it would have severely damaged, if not wrecked, the ancient church.

MUSSOLINI ORDERS QUIZ

Believing the bombing was the work of his enemies who sought to weaken the Fascist regime and widen the breach between church and state, Premier Benito Mussolini ordered a searching investigation of the affair and was ready to prosecute to the full extent of the law the person or persons found responsible for the outrage.

The bomb, a cylindrical affair equipped with a clock-work device and weighing 29 ounces, was discovered in the church late last night by one of the sextons of St. Peter's. Covered with yellow paper to disguise its purpose, the bomb lay close to one of the massive pillars supporting the dome of the church and only a few feet from the tomb of Pope Clement.

DISCOVERS BOMB

The sexton was making his regular round of the church when he noticed the suspicious-looking package. Recognizing at once that it was a bomb, he took it in his hands and rushed out of the edifice, depositing the machine in an outlying part of the gardens where its explosion could do the least damage.

Hardly had he notified the Vatican authorities of the discovery when the bomb exploded with a terrific roar. The blast tore a huge hole in the grounds of the garden, uprooting beautifully cultivated plants and flowers and hurling fragments of its shell for a considerable distance.

PONTIFF STARTLED

The blast was heard throughout Vatican City. Papal nobles and soldiers rushed to the scene, while His Holiness himself, startled out of a deep sleep, immediately asked for a full report on the incident.

The Pope expressed great satisfaction over the courage and foresight of the sexton who discovered the bomb and made plans to promote him and decorate him for his action. His Holiness then knelt in prayer before resuming his interrupted rest and arose at his usual hour—shortly after 6 a. m.

Vatican officials revealed a note was found in St. Peter's recently reading:

"Dynamite shall blow up this cage."

Norma Talmadge At Mother's Bedside

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—(AP.)—Norma Talmadge, motion picture actress, arrived here yesterday from Honolulu to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Talmadge, who has undergone a major operation. Hospital attendants said Mrs. Talmadge's condition was good.

Coyne Boosts Decorating Courthouse Anger Him

Jimmy Coyne's boys painted the town last night—but the Senator says he didn't know about it.

Early arrivals at the City-County Building and the Courthouse this morning found bright, yellow signs stenciled on the sidewalks and steps. They were three feet long, a foot wide and printed in two slogans:

"Coyne for County Commissioner."

"Elect J. J. Coyne County Commissioner."

Fourteen were on the walk in front of the City-County Building, three on its steps, 20 in front of the Courthouse and others at the sides and rear of each building.

Coyne, now a state senator, waxed indignant when informed of the signs.

Speaking angrily, he said:

"The sidewalks belong to the people and should not be used for any kind of advertising. I don't know who did it. It probably was some over-zealous friend. If I find out, I'll see it doesn't happen again."

A city ordinance provides for a $20 fine and 30 days in jail, or both, for each political sign painted on city-owned property.

A witness to the artists' efforts said the paint cans bore the inscription "Traffic Department, City of Pittsburgh." The yellow was the same shade used in outlining "No Parking" zones.

Public Safety Director Clark and Public Works Director Lang said they would try to find where the city's paint came from.

Kitty Kresge, U. S. Heiress, Wed Britisher July 8

LONDON, July 17.—(INS.)—Kitty Kresge, daughter of the American five and ten-cent store magnate, was honeymooning at Antibes, France, today with Carl Carlsson Wijk, naturalized British subject, International News Service learned today.

The couple was married at the Ritz Carlton Hotel here on July 8, it was learned, and departed immediately for the French watering resort for their honeymoon. The wedding was a quiet affair, attended only by members of the families and a few intimate friends.

Ruth Kresge, whose engagement to Rufus Clark Gaulkins, of Detroit, Mich., was announced some time ago, left London today for Paris. Friends of the Kresge girls said Kitty met her husband through Ruth's fiance, who is a close friend of Wijk.

GLOBE FLIERS UNDAUNTED BY NEAR-TRAGEDY AT TAKEOFF

PILOT'S SKILL AVERTS BAD CRASH

Herndon and Pangborn to Make New Start Tonight; Alter Plans for Flight

By JAMES J. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Undaunted by the near-crash of their plane at Roosevelt Field in an unsuccessful take-off this morning, Hugh Herndon, Jr., young society man, and Clyde Pangborn, veteran barnstorming aviator, propose to hop off again about midnight on their projected flight around the world.

Off to Moscow via Harbor Grace, N. F., is their program, and they intend to go through with it without delay. Moscow is the first of four planned stops after they soar over the Atlantic on their globe-girdling flight.

The intrepid airmen almost cracked up early today when they attempted to carry a load of 8,230 pounds into the air. The big plane, with its heavy burden, which included 830 gallons of gasoline, got off to an awkward start down the mile-long runway. It raced at high speed for considerable distance before it wobbled clumsily from the ground.

SAFE LANDING

Spectators held their breath as it headed straight toward a hangar without attaining much altitude. There was a sigh of relief when it barely cleared the hangar. A stream of gasoline, hastily jettisoned, poured from the plane. Pangborn, who was at the stick, finally maneuvered the plane into a nearby field to a safe landing.

As Pangborn stepped from the cockpit of the plane, Capt. J. Nelson Kelly, manager of the field, said:

"Nice work, Pang."

The flier thanked him and declared that they would make another attempt to take off as soon as possible. He said:

"This weather is too good to miss."

FIANCEE SEES PERIL

Herndon's mother, Mrs. Dixon Boardman, of New York City, and his fiancee, Miss Mary Ellen Farley, of Albany, N. Y., were among the witnesses to the near-tragedy.

Explaining the failure, Pangborn said:

"I couldn't get her off because the air was too dead. Herndon had his hand on the dump valve and he released the gasoline as soon as I gave the signal."

Originally, they planned to fly directly from New York to Moscow. After the near-accident, however, Herndon said they had altered their program to the extent of making a stop at Harbor Grace. That would permit them, he pointed out, to start across over the ocean with a lighter load and give them a better chance of getting safely into the air.

Pangborn tried every trick known to fliers to get the ship into the air during the mile-long run down the famous runway.

20-FOOT DROP

The runway extends down Roosevelt Field No. 1 and then there is a 20-foot drop to Roosevelt Field No. 2.

The plane was traveling at an estimated speed of 80 miles an hour when it came to the end of the runway and dropped down the gully. Everyone at the field thought the ship had crashed and made a dash for the gully. Two ambulances also rolled across the field. The 20-foot drop gave the plane sufficient speed for the clever Pangborn to avert tragedy and keep it in the air until he could land it safely on Field No. 2. Pangborn said they would have kept on except that it had been necessary to jettison all the reserve gasoline to lighten the ship in order that it could clear some old wooden hangars in the path of the plane.

Oklahoma and Texas War Over Bridges

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 17.—(AP.)—Gov. W. H. Murray said today he would call out the National Guard if any attempt is made by Texas Rangers to interfere with highway employes tearing up Oklahoma road approaches to a toll bridge across the Red River at Denison, Tex.

He declared neither he, as Governor, nor the state could be made parties to an injunction pending in Federal Court in Texas preventing the opening of a free bridge paralleling the toll structure. Murray ordered the free bridge opened last night, but Gov. Sterling, of Texas, had the Rangers restore the barriers today.

A high pressure area prevails over the southern states and a high appears in the Northwest, while low pressure centered north of the Great Lakes extends southwestward across the country to the far Southwest. Showers and thunderstorms were quite general over the eastern states yesterday and last night and there was a thunderstorm area in the upper Mississippi Valley. Rainfall was light generally, but heavy in some localities.

They were welcomed by representatives of President Doumer and Foreign Minister Briand, and by the British ambassador and Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, in person.

ABOLISH FARM BOARD—REED

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(INS.)—A demand for abolition of the Federal Farm Board was made today by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania. He said:

"I have observed that the wheat farmers, instead of profiting from the policies of the board, appeared to be the chief sufferers from its experiments. I am hopeful that they will join in the growing demand for its abolishment."

He said he would ask the Federal Trade Commission to investigate activities of the Land-O-Lakes Creamery Company, a Minneapolis co-operative financed in part by the Farm Board. Reed said he had received many complaints against the company's alleged action in using federal funds in competition against private concerns.

Navy to Use Steam Power on Warships

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP.)—The Navy has decided to use steam turbines instead of electric propelling machinery aboard the battleships New Mexico, Idaho and Mississippi, thus saving about $300,000.

The decision involves substitution of steam for electricity aboard the New Mexico, the first battleship of any nation to be equipped with electric drive. The present power plants on the other two ships are steam.

Eiffel Tower Plunge Kills Young Bride of Prince

PARIS, July 17.—(AP.)—Paris was amazed today to learn that Princess Anna Obolensky Troubetzkoy, a young bride, had ended her life by jumping from the ramparts of the Eiffel Tower while the city was celebrating Bastille Day Tuesday.

Princess Anna Alexis Obolensky was married by a civil ceremony in New York last month to Prince Serge Gregory Troubetzkoy.

Police said a purse found after the plunge contained farewell letters signed "Anna Obelensky."

Petit Parisien, in commenting on her death, said:

"None of the numerous visitors on the third platform thought the elegant young woman wished to die. They could not prevent her from getting over the parapet when she threw herself into space. After striking the ironwork her body crashed to earth."

BUDAPEST PAYS TRIBUTE TO SEA FLIERS

Airmen Send Thanks to U. S. For Aid; Awarded $10,000 Offered by Rothermere

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 17.—(AP.)—Focusing the world's spotlight on their native land with the first trans-Atlantic flight from America to Hungary, Capts. Alexander Magyar and George Endres gave themselves up today to the plaudits of their countrymen.

They landed the monoplane Justice for Hungary near the village of Bicske, 14 miles from Budapest at 7:40 p. m. (2:40 p. m. Pittsburgh time) last night, missing their goal by the scantiest of margins because their fuel ran out. They had flown 3,239 miles from Harbor Grace, N. F., in 26 hours and 22 minutes since Wednesday noon after a hop from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., on Monday.

PLANE DAMAGED

Their plane came down in a forced landing by the side of a railroad track, damaging the propellor and one wing but inflicting no injury on the pilots. They crawled out and telephoned the news of their arrival to Matyasfold Airdrome. Another plane brought them to the city.

Both pilots were in the Hungarian air force during the war and are now army reserve fliers.

They plan to remain here about a month and then make a return crossing of the Atlantic via Africa and South America.

GRATEFUL TO AMERICA

The example of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in flying the Atlantic stimulated Magyar and Endres on their hop to Hungary, they said today in a message to the American people.

After rendering thanks to divine province for having protected them and their airplane, they said:

"We wish to express with all modesty our gratitude to the great American nation and to those Hungarians living in the United States, especially our friends whose combined efforts enabled us to bring this great Hungarian venture to a glorious conclusion."

WIN $10,000 PRIZE

VIENNA, July 17.—(AP.)—Capts. Alexander Magyar and George Endres, who flew the monoplane Justice for Hungary across the Atlantic, are to receive the Lord Rothemere prize of $10,000 for the feat.

The British publisher today telegraphed congratulations from Baden-Baden and sent another wire to Premier Count Bethlen asking him to give the fliers the $10,000 check representing the prize he posted for the first flight from the United States to Hungary.

Sydney-Tokio Plane Damaged, Flies On

MANILA, July 17.—(AP.)—With one end of his plane's propeller patched with a piece of gasoline can and tacks and the other end bound with rubber tape, C. C. Chichester arrived here today after a 250-mile flight from Masbate, en route from Sydney, Australia, to Tokio, Japan.

When leaving Ormoc, Leyte Island, Tuesday, the propeller struck a floating object. Although afraid the motor would fall out he flew 120 miles to Masbate that day. Chichester left Sydney July 3.

RAIL TO GUARD RESERVOIR

Posts joined by steel cables probably will be erected at Highland Park reservoir No. 1 to prevent a repetition of the tragedy which yesterday cost the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Strahley, of 1424 Browning road, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang said this morning, following a personal investigation.

Lang said final decision would be made at a conference today with city engineers.

Funeral arrangements for the aged couple who drowned when their automobile, apparently out of control, crashed through an iron guard rail, near Mt. Bigelow, and plunged into the reservoir, were completed today. Services will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, and burial will be in the family mausoleum in Homewood Cemetery. The Rev. George F. Fisher, pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church, will have charge.

Strahley, who was 75, was instructing his wife, 66, how to drive.

ence of ministers to be held Monday.

Reichstag Extra Session Rejected by Elders

BERLIN, July 17.—(AP.)—The Reichstag council of elders today rejected a demand by Communists and National Socialists that the Reichstag be convened in special session next week.

Its action was influenced by a letter from Chancellor Bruening, saying:

"Having regard to the gravity of a situation concerning which I need not go into detail, I must in the interest of the fatherland urgently request that the council reject demands to convene the Reichstag. An extra session at this time would only do serious harm."

Pistol shots from behind Communist barricades in the industrial Ruhr today emphasized the seriousness of the financial situation in Germany.

RIOTING RENEWED

Rioting broke out in Gelsenkirchen and police battled Communists for possession of the streets. About the same time a Communist was killed and two were wounded by gunfire in a brawl with National Socialists at Darmstadt.

In Gelsenkirchen, 40 stores were plundered, windows were smashed, lights were knocked out and pavements were torn up. The rioters threw up fortifications in three thoroughfares and defied the efforts of the police to dislodge them, replying with bullets, bricks and bottles. Similar frays occurred in Dusseldorf and Coblenz.

The departure of Chancellor Bruening for Paris was marked by a particularly violent outburst in the Berlin press against the conditions which France is reported to be demanding.

"A Second Versailles," "Germany Will Become a Second China," "The Colonization of Germany" are some of the headlines appearing in the Nationalist press.

Simultaneously with the chancellor's departure the government decreed a wholesale suppression of radical newspapers of both the right and left political parties.

HOOVER DROPS ISOLATIONIST POLICY

Sending of 'Full - Fledged' Delegates to London Puts U. S. in European Mixup

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Hoover's appointment of Secretaries Stimson and Mellon as full fledged participants in the London conference of ministers marks an epochal change in the foreign policy of the American government as pursued since the Senate refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles.

Ostensibly, the London conference is to deal with ways and means of helping Germany out of her serious financial situation. Actually, it is conceded here that the conference is going to be compelled to review not only Germany's immediate plight, but the whole train of events and basic conditions which led up to it. That means reparations, war debts and the political understandings and guarantees with which Europe has involved its post-war finances.

PRECEDENT SHATTERED

Secretaries Stimson and Mellon will be sitting in a conference as officially accredited representatives of the United States such as no Americans have sat in, officially, for 10 years. Always heretofore, in such conferences, and in meetings far less portentous, the United States has been represented only by "unofficial observers," if at all.

The result, in its relation to the future foreign policy of the American government, is incalculable. That it may well mark a new and important milestone in the development of American relations with Europe is universally conceded.

SCOPE IN DOUBT

In announcing the designation of Stimson and Mellon, President Hoover said:

"It is our understanding that the conference is limited entirely to questions of the present emergency."

However, there is no agenda for the meeting, and the statement was made by Acting Secretary of State Castle here that no definite instructions have been given to the two American representatives. They have been left free to discuss or not to discuss, apparently, anything that arises in the meeting.

The result of Mr. Hoover's move will be anxiously awaited by his party in the Senate. The most powerful Senators on the Republican side have been the so-called "Isolationists," who strongly supported the Hughes policy, and the subsequent policies of his successors in abstaining from participation in European conferences of a politico-financial character.

Hoover Asks Dawes Hurry Back to London Post

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP.)—President Hoover today asked Ambassador Dawes to speed his return to his London post and assist Secretaries Stimson and Mellon at the ministers' conference on Germany.

Acting Secretary Castle, of the State Department, said the President had asked the ambassador to hurry back to London. Dawes is now in Chicago and was to have sailed July 22 on the Mauretania.

Secretary Stimson talked by trans-Atlantic telephone today with President Hoover and the acting secretary and told them of the steps taking place in rapid succession in Europe on the general European situation. The Secretary has reported the French attitude on political demands on Germany in connection with financial relief for the Reich.

It was strongly intimated that if the present French attitude was followed at the London meeting it would be rejected by the United States.

Ban Sailor Uniforms For Police Raiders

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—(AP.)—The Navy Department has informed the city administration that policemen must desist from wearing sailors' uniforms when seeking evidence against liquor law violators. When Rear Admiral Lucius A. Bostwick, commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, who assisted in the investigation of the incident complained of by the department, so informed Mayor Mackey today, Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety said:

"To my mind this is small potatoes on the part of the United States Navy."

Mellon Starts for Paris Reading Week-Old Paper

ST. JEAN, CAP FERRAT, France, July 17.—(AP.)—Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, who has been here on vacation, started for Paris by train this evening.

He will confer with Secretary of State Stimson there tomorrow and probably will go with Mr. Stimson to the conference of ministers at London on Monday evening.

Mr. Mellon turned correspondents away, asserting:

"I grant no interviews outside the United States and as few as possible there."

He did say, however, that Mr. Stimson's summons to him today came as a surprise. He declared:

"I didn't think I would be needed while Mr. Stimson was here."

His son, Paul, is going with him to Paris and it was intimated that Mr. Mellon might come back here after the London meeting.

It was noted that Mr. Mellon carried reading matter to pass the time on the train, a life of Henry the Eighth and a week-old copy of a London newspaper.

JACK DEMPSEY REPORTED 'BROKE,' ARRANGING COMEBACK

NEEDS MILLION AFTER RENO LOSSES

Chicago Newspaper Asserts Former Champion Hopes to Recoup Fortune in Ring

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Jack Dempsey is dead broke and badly in need of a million dollars which he hopes to get through a desperate ring comeback, the Chicago Evening American said today in a copyright dispatch from Reno, Nev.

It was Reno, America's new "cradle of liberty," which caused the former heavyweight champion's financial downfall, the Evening American story said.

Dempsey needs a million dollars—and needs it badly, it was said, and the only way he can get it is to fight for it.

Dempsey figures he can get a million dollars by raising his finger and indicating he will go for another ring comeback, the American said, adding that Dempsey is $150,000 in debt.

Where did the money go? How the fighter went through a fortune of $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 can be blamed on his extravagant nature, it was said.

Jack wants to possess everything in sight, it is said. He doesn't wear a single piece of jewelry, but he loves to bedeck others. His lavish gifts to his wife, Estelle Taylor, were said to have been more than $250,000.

His stock market losses were estimated at $300,000. Friends say that his promotional schemes have cost him more than $300,000.

MORE JOIN TAXI PEACE MOVE

Ranks of the back-to-work forces seeking an early settlement of the five-week-old taxicab strike were increased yesterday, according to a statement today by John E. Tait, chairman of the "strike settlement committee." Tait said he expected the number which now stands at 300 to be increased by 100 during the week-end, the number required to effect a settlement.

Only two members of the strike settlement committee were ousted from the cab drivers' union, Bert Snyder, secretary of the back-to-work group said today. He was denying a statement by John Stackhouse, secretary-treasurer of the union.

Six girl telephone operators, reported dismissed by the Yellow Cab Company for failing to obey orders to tell persons asking for cabs that the strike was ended and riding in cabs was safe, attended a protest meeting at the home of Miss M. Hays, 3108 Iowa street, last night.

The new bridge, 6,450 feet long, will span the big gap of San Francisco Bay.

C. N. Johns, of the Page Steel and Wire Company, confirming the order today, said that all the cable would be made in the Monessen plant. He said he expected that the Page force of wire workers would be augmented by the first of the year to care for the filling of the contract.

INDIANA COURT BANS PICKETS

INDIANA, Pa., July 17.—(INS.)—As the result of a sweeping injunction granted by Judge J. N. Langham, in the Indiana County Court, all scheduled demonstrations, marches and picketing by striking miners of Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company were canceled today.

Judge Langham granted the temporary injunction late yesterday on the petition of the coal company which claimed striking miners from the Sagamore district in Armstrong County were intimidating workers who declined to join the walkout.

About 150 Sagamore strikers who planned a march on the mine near here last night were confronted by Sheriff John Borland armed with a copy of the injunction. They dispersed.

A group of Sagamore strikers marched on the Barr Slope mine of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation in an attempt to recruit workers there in the strike. Company officials said none of the men responded.

Akstin's companion escaped.

Shankle, lying in hiding in the station after a robbery two weeks ago, told police that about 2 o'clock this morning two men broke a window and made an attempt to open the door of the establishment. He said he fired one shot, which felled Akstin, and then rushed outside and sent a volley of six shots at the fleeing companion.

Akstin, one bullet through his head, was taken to the Kittanning Hospital, where he died two hours later. A brother, Daniel Akstin, 25, identified the body. He was unable to give police any information as to who had been his brother's accomplice.

MRS. DAVID B. SCOBIE

HEIRESS WEDS, PLOT FAILS

BELOIT, Wis., July 17.—(INS.)—Wisconsin's richest girl, Florence Yates, now Mrs. David Pennistone Scobie since her wedding Wednesday, was honeymooning in the East today undisturbed by attempts to extort $15,000 from her on the eve of her marriage.

A note, signed by the "Big Eight" gang, demanding the money, was received Wednesday by Miss C. Haskin, Miss Yates' elderly chaperon, after a threatening note had been received Monday. Rockford, Ill., and Beloit authorities lay in wait all Wednesday night trying to trap the would-be extortionists, but they failed to appear.

Miss Yates is the sole heiress of $20,000,000 left by her father, Porter B. Yates, who was head of the Yates American Machine Company. Her parents are both dead.

Her husband, who is from Berlin, Wis., began as a $1,500 a year insurance man and is now a young broker in Chicago.

'MA' TO REWED MATE AFTER DIVORCE

Three Other Women Make Claims to 'What a Man;' Evangelist Goes to Court

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—(AP.)—The honeymoon of Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, and the Rev. G. Edward Hudson came to an abrupt end today with the bride seeking annulment of their marriage, on the ground that Hudson still is legally married to another woman.

The suit was filed here yesterday by Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson with the concurrence of Hudson. It set forth that at the time of their marriage in Longview, Wash., June 28, Hudson still was legally married to L. Margaret Newton Hudson.

Referring to Hudson as "What a man!" Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson said:

"When this is all settled we will be married again. And what a wedding!"

PLANS DIVORCE SUIT

Attorney Frank Lober, who counselled Mrs. Kennedy, indicated Hudson would shortly take up residence in Nevada, preparatory to filing suit for divorce from Mrs. Newton-Hudson. Told of these plans, the latter said:

"Such a man! If only I could have given 'Ma' the benefit of my experience with him! Our married life was not very pleasant. He was out of work and we often had to depend upon the meager earnings of my young son to buy food for the table."

Hudson said:

"I am still in love with Mrs. Kennedy and I stand ready to do anything to relieve her of this unhappy mix-up."

WILL FIGHT FOR HAPPINESS

He and Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson left here Tuesday for a honeymoon tour, but were back Wednesday night with a copy of a newspaper which listed other purported romances in which Hudson had figured. Asked the bride:

"What! Only three women after him? Why, there should be 3,000. I serve notice on the world I'm going to fight for my happiness."

Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson said she would live apart from Hudson until this is all settled.

JILTED, WOMAN SAYS

The two other women mentioned in the newspapers were a Mrs. Guy Edward Hudson, of Denver, and Mrs. Ethel Lee Harbert, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Harbert said Hudson led her to the marriage license bureau January 12, 1929, and then jilted her. She remarked:

"Hudson is a good salesman. He wasn't a minister when I knew him.

3 Die as Gale Blows Cars Into Path of Train

HORACE, Kan., July 17.—(AP.)—Three men, two of them identified as Virgil Graber, 25, and George Miller, 20, of North Platte, Neb., were killed when a high wind propelled four box cars from a siding into the path of a Missouri Pacific passenger train here last night.

Three others were injured, one perhaps fatally. The victims were sleeping in the side-tracked box cars. Passengers and crew of the train escaped injury.

Miller was identified by means of papers in his pockets. The identification was verified by Mrs. Fred Miller, his mother, at North Platte. She said her son's companion was Graber.

The third victim of the freakish accident was not identified immediately.

Mrs. Miller said her son and Graber were harvest hands. Their automobile was found near the scene of the accident. Apparently they had entered the cars to sleep during the wind and rain storm.

FIGHT ON COAL RATE INCREASE TO BE BITTER

Operators Will Contest Proposal Made by Roads Involving Differentials

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP.)—Plans of the railroads to increase rates on coal and coke, excluded from the blanket 15 per cent increase petition in order to make specific rates, today promised to develop one of the most bitterly contested points in the carriers' efforts to raise freight rates.

The petition for a 15 per cent blanket increase specified that coal and coke and "certain other commodities" be exempted, so that specific rate schedules could be applied to them. At the opening of hearings July 15, the roads amended this to eliminate the "other commodities," leaving only coal and coke as subject to the special schedules proposed. These schedules were explained by Roy Kern, Pittsburgh rate expert, testifying in the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearing on the application.

INCREASES OPPOSED

Questions asked Kern by attorneys representing producers and shippers indicated there would be a sustained effort to prevent the increases, which in some instances exceed 15 per cent, and in others are below that figure.

Rates from the Appalachian region in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Eastern Kentucky, Southwestern Virginia and Tennessee are based on three districts known as the outer crescent, inner crescent, and Ohio.

The outer crescent consists of the Altoona, Meyersdale and Cumberland - Piedmont districts in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Northern West Virginia; the New River, Pocahontas, Tug River and Clinch Valley in Southern West Virginia, and the Stonega in Southwestern Virginia.

PITTSBURGH AFFECTED

The inner crescent consists of Pittsburgh and Connellsville in Western Pennsylvania, Fairmont in Northern West Virginia, Kanawha, Thacker and Kenova in Southern West Virginia, and Kentucky Big Sandy, Hazard, McRoberts and Harlan in Eastern Kentucky.

The Ohio consist of Cambridge, Hocking, Pomeroy and Number Eight districts in Ohio.

It is proposed to increase the rate from the inner crescent districts 15 per cent. This increase, figured in cents, is then to be applied to the outer crescent and the Ohio districts, instead of raising those rates a flat 15 per cent. Questioning of Kern while on the stand disclosed that the increase in the Ohio district rates would be about 19 per cent, and that for outer crescent districts less than 15 per cent.

Davis Urges Speedy Decision on Rates

United States Senator James J. Davis, here yesterday to confer with political leaders, in an interview said:

"The biggest question before the country today is the predicament of the railroads. The Interstate Commerce Commission now meeting, should make every effort to dispose of the question of increased freight rates. They should get this matter in shape so that when Congress reconvenes that it will have before it facts to act upon if remedial legislation is necessary."

Jurist Upholds Right of Dogs To Bark

CHICAGO, July 17.—(AP.)—In Chicago dogs have the right to bark if they are disturbed or believe prowlers are about.

A judicial decision to this effect was given by Judge Leon Edelman. He ruled in favor of Albert Bloom against whom neighbors complained that his two police dogs disturbed them by barking at night.

Attorney Leonard J. Grossman for Bloom made a speech about dogs, telling how their barking often resulted in the capture of criminals, and introduced two boys who admitted they had been throwing missiles at the animals. The court said:

"The case is dismissed. The dogs were only doing their duty."

ENID, Okla., July 17.—(AP.)—Joe Ingram, county prisoner who won his freedom by heroism displayed in a $100,000 fire that destroyed the Garfield County Courthouse and jail last January, was held today on a charge of starting the fire.

Sheriff Joe Cavin arrested Ingram last night and said he was seeking two other men, prisoners at the time, on warrants charging them with being confederates of Ingram in the arson plot.

Ingram made several trips into smoke-filled cells of the jail to guide other prisoners to safety, but Sheriff Cavin said investigation had revealed Ingram knew where the fire was started and could calculate the amount of risk he was taking.

The Department of Revenue today announced that no special ceremonies will feature the event. The boat and the crew will be inspected at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at its berth at du Pont's wharf by A. P. Delahunt, commissioner of the Bureau of Liquid Fuels Tax; Benjamin G. They were said to have been en route to the wheat fields in Kansas to seek employment, when apprehended near Delmont by state police, who had been stopping machines to examine brakes and headlights. When unable to show driver's license and car registration card, they were held for investigation, and subsequently turned over to the federal authorities. THE DAILY NEWSPAPER, as an institution, is one of the most important industries in the country today. It is so closely interwoven in the lives and habits of the American people that it has become a virtual necessity to the many millions which it serves.

Here is an opportunity to invest in a group of nationally known publishing enterprises that have been consistently profitable for many years. They include some of the strongest and most successful newspaper enterprises under the control of William Randolph Hearst. Vigorous and progressive, they are read and respected because of their adherence to true American ideals.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., Class A shares yield a full 7% return with the privilege of participating in extra dividends up to an additional 3% as declared.

Considering the greatly reduced earnings of many companies during the past year it is an excellent indication to note that this company is earning at the rate of three times its 7% dividend requirement on the total authorized issue of class A shares.

As a sound investment these shares should appeal to everyone who is interested in providing future security through an issue yielding a good return with a wide margin of safety.

DISCUSS TRADE SCHOOL WORK

Earl A. Dimmick, director of extra-curricular activities at the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School, spoke at a vocational and industrial arts conference at Carnegie Tech yesterday. He said:

"Handbooks and manuals compiled by industrial organizations, based on practical problems are a better source of science and mathematics for use in school shop courses than textbooks written by theorists."

W. E. Brunton, supervisor of industrial education for the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg, showed slides to illustrate his discussion on "Junior Mechanics." He advocated the idea of school clubs, with buttons or medals of reward for course activities to stimulate students.

Gerald B. Whitney, head of the University of Pittsburgh department of vocational education, opened the two-day conference Wednesday afternoon. Glenn U. Cleeton, head of the department of industrial education at Carnegie Tech, was chairman of the conference.

SHRINERS END CONVENTION

CLEVELAND, July 17.—(AP)—The Shrine of North America presented a second performance of its colorful pageant, "A Night in the Orient," and adjourned its fifty-seventh annual convention last night until next year's meeting in San Francisco.

The Pacific coast city was the only one to present a formal invitation and had offered financial inducements not matched by any other city.

Chicago, a leading contender at the start, dropped its campaign.

Thomas J. Houston, of Medinah Temple, Chicago, was formally inducted into the office of imperial potentate today.

Shrine officials estimated that between 60,000 and 70,000 persons visited Cleveland during the week to attend some phase of the convention.

1 DEAD, 5 SHOT IN RACE RAID

CAMP HILL, Ala., July 17.—(AP)—One Negro was killed and five others wounded early today as posses sought leaders of a mass meeting near here at which Gov. B. M. Miller was threatened with violence unless he released eight Negroes under death sentence for an attack on two white girls near Scottsboro, Ala., last March.

Posses were organized after Sheriff J. Kyle Young was wounded seriously and his deputy sheriff, Jack Thompson, was slightly hurt when they sought to question Ralph Gray, a Negro, who was slain by officers.

Chief of Police J. M. Wilson said the five Negroes, one of whom was wounded seriously, were shot in an exchange of fire with the posse. Chief Wilson said 30 had been arrested and the posse sought five more.

EMBARGO URGED ON FOREIGN OIL

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(INS)—The placing of an immediate temporary embargo against foreign crude oil was urged upon President Hoover today in a telegram from the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas.

It was proposed the embargo remain in effect until such time as Congress has enacted adequate tariff protection for the American oil industry.

The telegram, which was referred to the Interior Department, declared that thousands of wells were being closed down in this country, that the price of six to 25 cents a barrel was ruining many producers and that thousands of men were being thrown out of work.

REPORTER PARADE -:- Newspaper Life Continues As Screen Theme -:- IN THE THEATERS -:- Pictures and Orchestras Open Here Today

Clark Gable Back in Restless Clan in 'Hot News,' Tabloid Drama

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.

The parade of reporter-heroes, sired by the memorable Hildy Johnson, continues to swagger across the screen.

Clark Gable, one of the two news-hawks of "The Secret Six," returns to the restless clan in "Hot News," a story of the tabloids, which M. G. M. proposes to make out of Emile Gauvreau's exciting book.

Clark Gable

Most of the studios have one or more newspaper stories in mind for their coming schedule . . . With "The Finger Points" released generally throughout the country now, First National is said to have an ace in the hole in "Five Star Final." Broadway's outstanding journalistic contribution of the season. Paramount's "Through the Window" is a mystery story with a newspaper background. Fox talks in the business-like fashion of "Sob-Sister."

And still the real personality of the reporter proves elusive. Some day he'll find his way to the screen. When he does doubtless many people will be disappointed.

LATEST GOSSIP

Most redoubtable of Hollywood golf antagonists are Douglas Fairbanks and Harold Lloyd. These warm days they battle it out three or four times a week. Both land in the seventies if in good form . . . Esther Ralston's baby is due any day now . . . Betty Compson is leaving directly for Utah, where she has been invited by the Governor to take part in the pioneer days fiesta. At last it comes out. Betty was born in this state in the town of Beaver . . .

Florence Vidor

Latest additions to the Malibu colony are the Jascha Heifetzes (you haven't forgotten she was Florence Vidor) . . . Speaking of Malibu, I'll never get over the fake Spanish ruins erected by a real estate company along the beach road. One tumble-down barn, ostensibly of California's mission period, even had two sad-looking jackasses staked nearby . . . A January traveler will be Paul Bern, who plans to spend four months' vacation in the Orient . . . Hunt Stromberg, associate producer at M. G. M., gets away to Europe shortly after the return of Irving Thalberg . . . Buddy Rogers is a tonsilitis victim. They're shooting scenes in which he does not appear.

NEW GUISE FOR MENJOU

Back to his role of heavy, and with some loss of elegance, goes Adolphe Menjou in the new Garbo picture, "Mata Hari." Fashion-plate Adolphe will be seen as a Greek gambler in this story of the mysterious and tragic beauty whom the French executed as a spy. George Fitzmaurice will start this picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in about two weeks. After dozens of scenarists had worked on the script, Barney Glazer, one of the old-timers, finally turned the trick. For the present, Garbo is engaged in the final scenes of "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lennox."

After making several pictures for R-K-O-Pathe, Joel McCrea is going over to Paramount to play in "Girls About Town," a story of two gold-diggers by Zoe Akins, who wrote along the same lines in "The Greeks Had a Word For It." The feminine roles will be taken by Lilyan Tashman and Kay Francis. That ought to insure flying sparks. George Zukor directs.

Howdy, Seth

Phillips Lord, the Seth Parker of radio Sunday nights, will arrive in Hollywood next week to play the star role in the film, "Other People's Business."

Marble Inn Night Club To Open Tonight

Curley's Marble Inn, night club in Millvale, will open tonight. The Moore-Stump Orchestra is a feature. There will be two floor shows nightly, with dancers and blues singers.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

I Thought I'd Die

It happened back stage at the Cohan where Heywood Broun's "Shoot the Works!" show is rehearsing. A lad ankled in, asked for Broun and said:

"I'm a lightning calculator, can you use me?"

"What's a lightning calculator?" asked Heywood.

"Oh," said the applicant, "you simply write down a long series of numbers on a board. I look at them a moment, then I turn my back, and I either add, subtract or multiply them for you as fast as lightning."

"That sounds fine," said Broun, "call me at noon tomorrow at Barclay 7-3221."

"Hmmm," hmmm'd the lightning calculator, "would you mind writing that number down?"

In Fewer Words

Take it from the observations of the late Arnold Daly, the Tired Business Man isn't tired from work, but from the fatigue of five highballs before dinner.

You Can Bet on It!

A columnist's wife was worried. She confided to a friend that she feared she might talk in her sleep some night and give herself away.

"I wouldn't worry, if I were you," comforted the friend, "your husband probably will be talking about himself and never hear you."

Skinned Deep

Although as yet it hasn't been announced—Saturday will signal the end of the glorification of the three beauty prize winners from Texas in Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies." The trio of blue-ribbonymphs were crowded in the great group of gorgeous girls—and were only on stage for a fleeting moment.

Mr. Ziegfeld also gave out six other notices—but took back four of them yesterday. The two who were released included a lassie who simply couldn't get up for matinees. The other gal startled everybody by getting married. Marriage is okay for "Rio Rita" girls or "Smiles" girls, but not for "Follies" dollies.

In sum, the survival of the It-est.

Incidentally

Another member of the "Follies" whose ballyhooing was terrific was Reri, the star of "Tabu," the movie. Reri has been out of the show for a few days and reports have it that she may not return.

Boomerang

The recent P. G. Wodehouse interview has re-acted like a stick of dynamite in Hollywood, and the writing fraternity have mobilized against him 100 per cent. In this interview he exposed the workings of the studios, and revealed how all the big writers, including himself, netted fortunes from the studios without turning in a screen story for production.

The interview was brought to the attention of the financial chiefs in Wall Street, who jumped on the studio heads. As a result they retrenched and are taking it out on the writers.

Heretofore they had plenty time off to play golf, swim or fish, while the big check went on and on.

But today a writer risks being ordered to sweep the studio floors, when not assigned to a story, and Wodehouse has become a cuss word of importance around the movie mecca.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the Dictionary of Best Similes: Grantland Rice: A discouraged state of mind is like trying to run a motor car without gasoline. It can only go down hill. . . Helen Rowland: Hats are like husbands, you know. A girl doesn't choose them; she merely accepts them under hypnotic influence. . . V. R. Cornford: Happy as a golf widow when it snows. . . Robert Frost: I suffered like metal being cast. . . Pathfinder: As hard as for some men to look important when their wives are around. . . As crestfallen as a dentist with the toothache. . .

Quiteso, Quiteso

Esther Muir's definition of tact: Remembering a woman's birthday—but not her age.

Green Speaks In Hearst Newsie

THE GLOBE TROTTER

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, gives a timely and interesting interview to the Globe Trotter in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News now being shown in the Penn and other theaters. Mr. Green declares that wage reductions in any line of industry at the present time are sure to prolong the period of depression. The labor leader points out that wage cuts would mean the great mass of small buyers would then be unable to keep up with their average purchases upon which all business depends.

From Pamplona, Spain, comes a picture full of thrills from start to finish. To celebrate the Feast of Saint Fermin, men of the town run through the street leading to the arena with a score of wild bulls chasing them. In the arena every man then tries to be a toreador. Nobody, not even a bull, is seriously hurt.

The dirigible Los Angeles is shown in thrilling maneuvers off Montauk, L. I., after which it passes out to sea where it is moored on the mother ship, Patoka.

The statue of Woodrow Wilson, designed by Gutzon Borglum and presented to Poland by the pianist and statesman, Ignace Paderewski, is unveiled at Poznan in the presence of Mrs. Wilson.

Notables from all sections of the United States gather in Cleveland for the national convention of the Shriners. The parade is most picturesque.

A new submarine life saver is tried out off Block Island, N. Y. It is designed to prevent submarine boat disasters. It is a great diving bell, with which the crew is brought to the surface. In the tests the rebuilt S-4, which was raised after her tragic accident, is used.

The national Eucharistic Congress in Lille, France, is a picturesque spectacle.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"I have been reading Walter Winchell's column every day, and I have been hoping to find something about the actors of Ziegfeld 'Follies,' but so far I have been disappointed. Perhaps in some column of your paper you could find space to write something about Thomas Arace, Frank Lang, Bob White, Hershel Martin and Robert Fitzpatrick. Myself and some other girls are anxious to know something about the actors, but everything we read seems to be about actresses. Thank you for your time and attention.

"MISS—— AND FRIENDS"

Don't mention it, Miss——. Our time is rated so small that payday scarcely means a thing to us, and our attention often has been called a distinct liability by recipients thereof. Perhaps Mr. Winchell has been remiss, but you'll admit there is something to be said for him, too, because Mr. Ziegfeld never has been known to put out a revue "Glorifying the American Boy." The male, of course, he has to have, but lovely lassies are the background, middleground and foreground of any "Follies." Yet we seem to remember Mr. Winchell having written something about Harry Richman, who, we believe, is classified as an actor. We, ourselves, are a little sore at Walt for not raving a little about Jack Pearl, whom, in our delusion, perhaps, we have held to be "the last" of the German dialect comedians on the stage. Still, Mr. Winchell may have all the boys in mind and he could be just waiting for an opportune time to give them what they deserve.

So we come to the point of telling you all we know about the actors you write about. We dug up the program of the "Follies" in the Nixon and found that Thomas Arace played a guest and a bellhop; Frank Lang, waiter; Robert White, waiter; Hershel Martin, second waiter, guest and bellhop. The name of Robert Fitzpatrick doesn't appear.

Small Timer says that no work makes Jack a dull boy, too, giving him no jack with which to play around?

The Stanley and Penn theaters appear to have become jazz-conscious. Cab Calloway and his orchestra, in the Stanley, and Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, in the Penn, will monopolize the stage in each theater, beginning today. With each organization there are specialists, those in the Stanley including Jazzlips Richardson, agile eccentric and acrobatic dancer. The Stanley is to stage a Sunday midnight show, with complete program, while the Penn announces five, instead of four, stage presentations daily.

Small Timer, following a blues singer, tells the audience his entrance is especially appropriate because the bluebird is a harbinger of happiness.

Clara Kimball Young, once in the ranks of the most popular of film stars, and who drew heavily in a "personal appearance" tour, will return to the screen in "Women Go On Forever." Of course, it's a talkie.

MAN SEEKING REUNION WITH SISTER

Parted From Relatives 25 Years, Son of Pittsburgh Merchant Keeps Up Hope

Separated from his family more than a quarter of a century, John Russell Reilly still cherishes a hope that some day he again will see his sister Margaret, whom he hopes is living somewhere in Western Pennsylvania or Eastern Ohio. His mother and father are dead.

It was at the deathbed of his supposed mother, Mary Reilly, whose name he now bears, that Reilly found out he had never known his true parents. Since that time, four years ago, Reilly, who now lives in Wilkes-Barre, has searched Pennsylvania looking for someone who knew his family.

Reilly has discovered he is the son of a former Pittsburgh coal merchant, John Russel, who placed him and a sister two years his senior in an orphanage in Philadelphia in 1906. It is for this sister that he is searching.

According to Reilly his grandfather was H. A. Taylor, who formerly lived at 323 Washington avenue, DuBois, Pa.

DIVORCEE FACES DEATH GRILLING

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 17.—(AP.)—The state submitted Mrs. Edna James, 27, divorcee, to cross-examination today in an effort to break down her story that Patrolman Raymond Castner shot her and, when he thought he had slain her, killed himself.

The prosecution seeks to bring her trial for first degree murder to a close by tonight. If the jury returns a verdict of guilty without a recommendation of mercy a sentence to the electric chair is mandatory.

Testifying in her defense she denied every charge the state had made against her. She denied that she killed the patrolman because he wanted to conclude their love affair.

She said his death followed a quarrel over their joint bank account.

CAPITAL SOCIAL 'EMPRESS' DIES

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP.)—The death at Bar Harbor, Me., last night, of Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, took from Washington social life one of its most unusual characters.

The wealthy 90-year-old society dowager was known as "the Empress of Sixteenth street," and she dwelled for 52 years in a huge, brownstone and walled mansion known as the "Henderson Castle" on the fashionable thoroughfare.

The widow of the late Senator John Brook Henderson, of Missouri, and friend of Abraham Lincoln, she occupied a unique position in capital affairs. She enjoyed the friendship or personal acquaintance of 15 presidents and 14 "first ladies of the land." She was widely known in diplomatic circles throughout the world.

Catholic Daughters To Attend Lecture

King, Rose Murphy, Margaret McDonald, Lila McDonough, Mary M. Rau, Katherine Sedlock, Marie White, Eltheldreda Wilson and Catherine Wilson.

People I've Met

WILLY SEBASTIAN DROSTE. Strange that I should be writing about him at this time. I was going over an old scrapbook and a letter that he had written me fell to the floor. I read it over. And as I read memories returned. Memories of one of the queerest, most unusual characters I ever knew.

Somewhere in the early part of 1924, if I am not mistaken, Willy arrived in this country. He had three or four other names and claimed to be a baron, a count, a duke and anything else that struck his fancy at the moment. At any rate, he was lan, pasty-faced, wore a monocle and carried a death-head that he said was 3,000 years old. You can readily understand that the reporters pounced upon him as he stepped off the boat.

I was at the pier on some other story that afternoon and I had my first glimpse of Willy. That glimpse was all that was necessary to know that this gentleman was a cuckoo. I strolled over and listened to the man as he rattled off his achievements. According to him, he had won the World War single-handed.

The man was amusing, no doubt about that. Even though he was doused with a variety of perfumes and you knew immediately that he was lying with every speech, there was something about the mug you had to like. Possibly it was the fact that he had a sense of humor.

I don't know what he hoped to accomplish in this country—but whatever it was he failed to accomplish it. He stopped at the Ritz (for a short time) and hobnobbed with the finest of the blue-bloods, as we common people say.

A few months after his arrival the baron—which was the title he finally adopted—pulled a stunt that put him on the front pages throughout the nation. With the aid of a clever press agent, he attempted to form the International Association Against Tyranny of Parents. How do you like that for an association?

The organization meeting was held at the Hotel Astor one afternoon and the place was filled with reporters. With two or three stooges sitting on a platform and applauding him, Baron Willy arose and made such a speech as has never been heard before or since. It was the ultimate in hooey.

"This is the age of reason," he declaimed. "The youth of the world should decide their futures for themselves. Should parents be given the right to dictate? Should they be permitted to shape the destinies of human beings just because those human beings happen to be their children? No, I say. Again and again, I say no."

He swallowed a tablet and a glass of water. His stooges applauded vigorously.

"Fathers never understand their sons," he rattled on. "Sons of the world should combine against the tyranny of parents!"

As soon as the meeting was over, he had himself elected president and treasurer of the association. He immediately called for contributions to his worthy cause, but inasmuch as there were only reporters in the room, he could have saved his breath.

On the following day the papers all carried stories about this novel association. The society pages were filled with nonsense about the baron and his noble work. And a few days later, of course, the entire thing was forgotten.

When his funds ran low, Willy wound up in the Cave of the Fallen Angels, an American night club that was run by a couple of fallen Russians. In that spot, Willy did some sort of a weird dance in a costume that cannot be described in this family gazette. But the lights were low, nobody ever saw the dance anyhow—and everybody was satisfied.

Some months later, the baron again hit those newspapers. He claimed to be madly in love with a most mysterious lady who lived very beautifully without having any apparent source of income. After informing the society columns that he was doing her the great honor to make her his bride, the lady ups and sails for Europe with the son of a noted banker and leaves Willy standing forlornly on the pier.

With the ship news reporters to comfort him (and those boys, I can assure you, are among the worst comforters in all history), Willy cried into 12 perfumed handkerchiefs. He swore by his title that he would have revenge upon both the lady and the banker's son. He would even challenge him to a duel.

"With handkerchiefs?" asked one of the boys.

That was too much for Willy. He strolled down from the pier, sobbing as though his heart would break. I really felt sorry for the poor guy. So I overtook him and asked if there was anything I could do.

"No, no," he cried bitterly. "What is there that anyone can do?" But for your information, I will tell you the truth of why I am crying. My only trunk is on that boat!" . . .

Willy disappeared. The papers later learned that he was the wayward son of a German banker and had no more title than Charles Levine. I often wondered what had become of him. And in September, 1926, I had a letter from him. It was the letter I mentioned in my first paragraph; the letter that fell from the scrap book.

"Mon Cher Hellinger:" it reads. "Your stories are unquestionably touched with some kind of human sentiment. But, my friend, why so sentimental?

"You remember me, I suppose. Not that it makes much matter, but you will probably be surprised to learn that I have but four months to live.

"Four months! If I should prefer what they call 'the cure,' I may linger for five years—in bed. So I prefer the four months.

"But what shall I do in those four months? I have studied all the philosophers from Socrates to Schopenhauer. I think I have lived what people usually refer to when they say, 'he has lived.' What, then, is there for me to do?

"Even my family wants me back—and that is little short of a miracle. They offer me a trip to Switzerland and the Riviera. Money appears from all comers. But there are still those four months—and I shall not cure.

"I shall live my last four months with finesse and taste. So you see this may be another of your very sad cases. A sad case that is not sad at all.

"Eh bien! I will soon be off. Your charming ship news reporters will give me their final farewell. It is not known which way I will travel—in a first class cabin or in a coffin. Anyhow—

"Goodby, dear Hellinger. And you will do me one favor, I know. Do not grow sentimental about my case. Think of the fun I will have in the next four months!" . . .

Willy Sebastian Droste kept his word. He had his last fling—and died in Germany in the home of his parents just four months later.

An amusing character, that man. And a swell last letter . . .

Edwards to Drop His Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP.)—William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, collector of internal revenue in New York, will withdraw his counter suit for divorce from Mrs. Edwards, his attorney, Walter W. Westall, announced today.

Westall made the statement after Thomas Wenstrom, New York salesman, was indicted for perjury. An affidavit by Wenstrom in which he told of alleged misconduct with Mrs. Edwards formed the basis for Edwards' suit.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By SALLY MARTIN

Is Male Gold-Digger Worse Than a Female One?

How about the man who "sells himself for money"?

Lets some doddering dowager marry him for the sake of a soft berth for himself?

Estelle is considerably exorcised over him. She's sure he is a Public Enemy and that there "otta be a law" protecting foolish females against him. Well, maybe. And again, maybe not. At any rate, it's a grand letter, and you might as well get in on the row.

"Dear Sally:

"For Sale—One adult human male. Physically perfect. Mentally normal. Morally ultra-modern. Offered to the highest bidder.

"Qualifications of Buyer—Must be female, and possess at least thirty or forty thousand dollars. Prefer that buyer be white, young, attractive and intelligent, but do not insist on these.

"Terms—Said male must be given complete possession and control of at least the greater part of buyer's property. In return she will receive a marriage certificate that will insure her at least temporary possession of her purchase.

"You've never seen an ad like the above, of course, and it may sound like the ravings of a lunatic. But what a lot of unhappiness would be saved if we could have a law requiring that men carry a label like that, revealing their exact motives and intentions?

SEEK WEALTHY WOMEN

"We hear a lot about women "selling themselves" for a life of ease and luxury. We don't hear so much about the men who do the same thing. But there are plenty of them. I am not referring to the gigolo who openly makes that his trade. He is honest, at least. His customers know what they are getting. But there are any number of middle-aged men who have wasted their time and money and who see old age coming and wonder what is going to become of them.

"The most plausible solution to present itself is to find a woman with money. A widow, especially, is supposed to be easy picking. She is supposed to be so crazy to marry again that she will jump at anything, and no questions asked.

"So the man looks around. He wants someone intelligent enough to have held on to her money until he found her, but not intelligent enough to see through him. And usually he finds her.

COLLECTS IN ADVANCE

"These men are past masters of love making. They know just how much to say—and how much to merely intimate—without committing themselves until they find whether things are going to go their way or not. Then, no matter how much the woman's heart may be involved, if they find she is too cautious or not so well off as they'd like they haven't made any promises and can duck out and offer themselves elsewhere.

"We don't read of these cases often. But there are plenty. In the case of a woman out for cash, of course she can sue for a divorce and alimony and sometimes get it—but her victim has a chance, at any rate. While in the case of the man who "sells himself," he collects usually in advance, so there is nothing his victim can do except kiss her money and her happiness good-bye and let it go at that! ESTELLE."

Well, sister, I can't see that it's any worse for a man to marry for money than it is for a woman. Times being what they are, it's just about as hard for the Old Boys to hustle three squares as it is for the Old Girls. And not, to my notion, any more contemptible, dishonest or cruel.

Women were given equal rights with men on the assumption that they had equal brains. And if they refuse to use said asset, it's just their bad luck.

But maybe I'm wrong. Perhaps a male gold-digger is worse than a female one. If so, here's your chance to say so, Stranger. You tell Estelle.

Hard to Define Beauty; Depends So Much on Individual Tastes, Says Fay King

EXOTIC TYPES ARE APT TO CLASH WITH THE SURROUNDINGS
CONTRASTING TYPES TOGETHER
THOSE WHO SEEM NEITHER BEAUTIFUL NOR SPARKING AT FIRST GLANCE, BECOME SO WHEN YOU KNOW THEM BETTER
FAY KING

By FAY KING

It is hard to define beauty. It depends so much upon individual tastes.

There is one beauty that strikes us at first glance, but grows less lovely as we come to know it better. Then there is a beauty which is quite unnoticeable at first glance, but that grows more lovely the longer and better we know that person.

There is a cool, calm beauty of outline and feature, which is rather spoiled by animation.

And there is a beauty of expression that is best appreciated when that girl is talking and laughing and quite forgets herself in expressing herself.

Contrasting types often flatter, but I have seen two beauties of the same type together who seemed rather to emphasize than detract from each other.

Madge Seeks Aid of Her Father

Mrs. Tiger gave an astonished little jerk as I told my father that I wished him to hear what she had to tell me. Plainly, she had counted upon telling me her news without any auditors. But I turned to her with a reassuring little smile.

"You know that my father knows all about your lodger last winter, Mrs. Tiger," I said, "so that you surely can talk before him."

She drew a deep breath as a swimmer might, and made a clean dive.

"I saw that man, Hallam, this morning," she said.

"Where?" my father asked quickly and I saw that he was giving her tense attention.

"In a big blue sedan, on the road from Bridgehampton."

"Was anybody else in the car?"

"Yes, three other men."

"Are you sure of this Hallam? Did he speak to you?"

"Not he," Mrs. Tiger returned spitefully. "He didn't expect to see me, you can count on that. He was way back in the car with the curtain part way down on his side and in the back the way people keep out of the sun sometimes, you know."

My father nodded in corroboration, and she went on.

"He just happened to lean forward to speak to one of the men in front when our two cars passed each other. I was going slow, and there was a truck in front of them so they had to go awful slow too. So I got a good look at him. I'd know him anywhere although he had a different kind of hat and suit, and was fixed up different somehow. But he knew me, I could tell from the way he dodged back into the car the second he caught sight of me. And the second the truck got where they could pass, the driver stepped on the gas and they went down the road a-flying."

"Which way were they headed?" my father asked next.

"Toward Bridgehampton."

"Ah! coming from Sag Harbor," my father commented tapping the knuckles of his right hand upon the garden seat.

"What time this morning did you see him?"

"About half-past 10 o'clock."

"H—m! Have you heard anything else about the car or the men in it? Did anybody else see them, I mean, and comment upon them? The car does not belong around here, I take it."

"No, I never saw it before, and I hain't heard anybody else speak of it."

"Well!" my father said after a second's reflection, "I don't see that there's anything to be done about it. They're probably a hundred miles on their way by now. And if they were right here, we wouldn't have any evidence to hold this man, Hallam."

There was something in his voice, however, which made me scrutinize his face closely. I decided that he was keeping back some impression which he did not wish to give Mrs. Tiger, and felt that I must not delay longer in telling him of the other disquieting thing which had happened to me.

"May I ask you to do something for me?" I turned to Mrs. Tiger with a smile. "I'm deplorably lazy, but I do hate to move from here just now, and Katie ought to know something at once which I forgot to tell her."

If she understood my ruse she gave no inkling of it, but rose promptly.

"If ever anybody earned the right to be lazy, you're the one," she said. "What do you want me to tell Katie?"

I had been racking my brain for a subterfuge and grasped at a straw which I fervently hoped would not prove to be the one associated with the camel's back.

"Tell her I've changed my mind about the salad for dinner," I said. "I'd like to have avocados if they're in the market and I think they are. Ask her to telephone and find out, and if they have them and can't get them out here in time, tell her to have Jim drive in after them."

"He won't need to," Mrs. Tiger said helpfully. "I ought to go both to Bridgehampton and the Harbor this afternoon, and I can bring them out with me for you."

"Thank you so much," I said, but my father intervened promptly.

"You are very kind, Mrs. Tiger, he said suavely, "but because you 'ought' to go does not mean that you have planned the trip for today. As it happens I must drive to the Harbor within the next few minutes and I do not believe I have forgotten how to select avocados. If you will be so kind as to tell Katie I will get them for her."

There was a courteous finality that sent Mrs. Tiger hurrying toward the house. When she was safely out of earshot, my father leaned toward me.

"Now, my darling girl," he said, "tell me what is troubling you?"

"How did you know?" I stammered.

"I have not been studying your loved face during the years since you were restored to me without being able to inflect all your moods and tenses," he answered, smiling tenderly. "Why, my child, what is this?"

For I had burst into nervous sobbing and was clinging to him as if I were the child he had called me.

"Oh! Father, I am so frightened," I said, and poured out the story of the Chinese and the threatening message he had brought to me.

:-: HOUSEHOLD HINTS :-:

Let all foods cool thoroughly before placing them in the refrigerator. Not only do warm dishes melt the ice but their keeping qualities will be destroyed.

If potatoes are kept in hot water fifteen minutes before baking it will take them only half the usual time. When a gas or electric stove is used this is advisable.

If your child has no silver cup for his first attempt at drinking, buy an earthenware cup for him. They can be purchased in attractive designs, are durable and easily washed.

Gelatine used in jelly making to make it harden is not a great success. The jelly will stay stiff as long as it is cold but if allowed to get warm it will get thin again.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Tubercular Tendencies in Infancy

It used to be believed that tuberculosis in infancy was a rare occurrence. Recent observations show that this disease is really quite prevalent in infants and young children.

Dr. Copeland

Of course, children are subject to many conditions which predispose to this infection. It is really remarkable that more cases of tuberculosis are not reported.

The hereditary factor is important. Children born of tubercular parents possess physical traits which make them liable to this disease. Where the mother has tuberculosis the danger is even greater than if the male parent is infected. It is for this reason that a tubercular mother is advised not to nurse her child.

Children who have been brought up in crowded homes and under unsanitary conditions are extremely susceptible to this disease. This is particularly true in crowded city tenements and city institutions.

Frail children who are inclined to all the common childhood ailments face the dangers of tuberculosis. Certain infectious diseases, such as measles, whooping coup and influenza, may leave the child in a condition to contract tuberculosis.

The most frequent way in which young children contract tuberculosis is by intimate contact with persons who have the disease. Many individuals are unaware of the fact that they are harboring the germs. Some believe they have been cured and still others are careless.

Such persons should not be allowed to play with children. Above all they should never kiss infants. The custom of kissing children is an unhealthful one and should be discouraged.

Spitting should never be tolerated in any home. Dried sputum containing the germs of tuberculosis soon becomes a part of the dust of the room. The child either inhales this dust or conveys it to the mouth by his hands or toys.

It is absolutely imperative that hygienic measures be practiced at all times. These rules should be closely observed when there are children in the household.

As persons grow older they build up a certain defensive mechanism against disease. Unless intimately exposed to tuberculosis the disease is rarely contracted.

Unfortunately, infants and children do not possess this mechanism. Yet tuberculosis of infants can be cured by hygienic surroundings, plenty of fresh air and sunlight and nourishing food. All these are enemies of tuberculosis.

Answers to Health Queries

J. C. Q—What can be done for a person who is troubled with very warm hands, feet and head?

A.—This condition may be due to a circulatory disturbance or high blood pressure. It would be well to consult your family doctor and have your blood pressure tested.

* * *

A Reader. Q.—I sleep with my mouth open and have had my tonsils removed—what will overcome the trouble?

A.—You may have a catarrhal condition which forces you to breathe through your mouth. Have your nose examined. The habit of lying on the back often causes mouth breathing. If you do this try and correct the habit.

* * *

M. E. Q—What do you advise for enlarged pores?

2—How can I reduce fat legs?

A.—Use hot and cold compresses alternately for 15 minutes night and morning.

2—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general. Exercise such as walking, running and dancing should help you.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

One notices more tousled coiffures, bobs all afluff. Suitable only for the striking looking girls who can get away with extreme ideas. The rank and file stick to more conservative designs.

Men say they don't like perfume, but watch how they hang around the pretty lady who uses plenty. Perfumes is as necessary to some gals as food and lodgings. It is the final touch to the dressing rite—like putting the cream on the shortcake. There are no definite floretted odors any more. Popular scents are blends or bouquets bearing astonishing names.

Bran exudes a starchy substance that has kindly, softening influence upon the complexion. Pour one pound of bran in a muslin bag, place in four quarts of hot water, boil for 10 or 15 minutes. Keep the liquid in a gallon bottle, and add enough of the liquid to the water in the bowl to make the water milky. Soap will suds up quickly. After the facial tubbing there will be no dryness or discomfort.

It is a dangerous business to tamper with a pimple that refuses to come to a point, but which hides away in a bump of cutaneous inflammation. Only a surgeon is capable of lancing it. Inexperienced fingers can produce a scar that may remain upon the skin. Treatment consists of applications of gauze which has been dipped in a hot solution of boric acid. After the compresses apply ointment of zinc oxide; let remain on over night.

Too much make-up makes a woman look wild. The use of lipstick and rouge, eye shadows and eye pencil should be temperate. No woman can afford to go on a cosmetic spree. Blondes particularly should regard painted phizes with a stern and critical intelligence, particularly if they are the victims of numerous birthdays. The public eye is wise, sees clearly, isn't fooled. A badly painted woman is an offence. She always will be. Too bad we can't have a national face-washing week, so as to find out how these bedizened girls look when they are "as is."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Book—or His Favorite Cigarets

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several years ago I lived opposite a certain boy. We moved and just remembered each other with cards at appropriate times. Last Christmas, however, we met and discovered that we lived within a few blocks of each other. Since then, my brother, this young man's sister, the young man and I have been going out about four times a week. He and I have birthdays on the same date. He will be 23 and I will be 22. Here is my problem! Should I present him with a gift, and if so, can you give me some suggestions? He has no particular hobbies. Personally I should like to remember him, but with something about which I cannot be teased in the future.

Let me tell you how sorry I am I had to be so rambly about the explanation but I could not present the situation very clearly in less words.

A GIRL.

It would be fine, and proper too, for you to plan to give this young friend something to commemorate your friendly interest in his birthday, but, as you yourself sense, it should be something with a spirit of casualness about it. A book is quite ideal for this, or a carton of his favorite cigarets, some records, if he is interested in that sort of thing.

If "All Is Well"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to be married in a couple of months. My fiance's name is John J. Burnett and his mother, a widow, goes by the name of Mrs. John J. Burnett. After we are married, I will be Mrs. John J. Burnett, Jr., will I not?

2. My mother passed away a number of years ago and about a year ago my father married again. How will the wedding invitations be worded?

I. K.

1. Yes.

2. This depends on the degree of your friendship with your father's new wife and the general situation. The very best form, if "all is well," is for your father and his new wife to sponsor the invitation and the announcement, if there is to be any. The form—the best form—is this:

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Robinson request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Leonora, to Mr. Thomas Gray, etc.

If this form does not appeal to you, the next best form is:

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Robinson request the honor of your presence at the marriage of Mr. Robinson's daughter, Leonore.

But this form is not nearly so correct as the first form, if your feeling permits the first form. You do not indicate in your letter.)

AMTORG SEEKS CUT IN TAXES

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(INS.)—Another controversy involving the relations of Russia and the United States developed today with the filing of an appeal by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, Soviet sales agency in the United States, for relief from an additional assessment of income taxes amounting to $23,846.

The Amtorg Corporation asked the United States Board of Tax Appeals to redetermine the deficiency assessment made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Notice was filed on the Amtorg Corporation by Commissioner of Internal Revenue David Burnet that the bureau had disallowed a deduction of $211,970 from the gross income of the agency, this amount having accrued on Amtorg books because of excise taxes payable to the Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics for the year ending September 30, 1929.

FEARING RAIDS, BOOKIES CLOSE

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—(AP.)—Parish and city authorities today clashed over enforcement of anti-gambling laws as approximately 100 bookmaking establishments were closed and 58 bookmakers were under indictment.

Police Supt. Hu B. Myers said his men had more important things to do than raid places where bets were placed on horse races. District Attorney Eugene Stanley, who had given Supt. Myers a list of places to raid, replied that if the police did not enforce the law special deputies of the parish (county) would.

After hearing of Stanley's threat, the downtown bookmaking establishments closed up and persons who wished to place bets had to seek bookmakers outside Orleans Parish.

The indictments were returned yesterday, but no names were revealed because arrests have not yet been made.

PROTEST DRIVE ON CHURCH

MEXICO CITY, July 17.—(AP.)—Press reports from Orizaba, Vera Cruz, today said parents had withdrawn their children from the public schools in protest against a program of lectures ordered by the state education department in behalf of the recently-enacted anti-church law.

An appeal for injunction against "threatened abduction" was wired to the Second District Court in the city of Vera Cruz yesterday by Father Rafael Soto, a Catholic priest of Jalapa, the state capital. He charged his house was "surrounded by suspicious persons" and that he feared kidnaping and death.

The court wired him a temporary injunction against "apprehension" and requested police to enforce it. Tension has existed for several weeks in Vera Cruz between Catholics and partisans of the new law.

Insurance Slayer Gets Death Respite

ATLANTA, Ga., July 17.—(AP.)—A 60-day respite was granted by Gov. Russell to Earl Manchester, of Macon, under sentence of death in the electric chair July 28 for the murder of James W. Parks, a youthful orphan, in a reputed plot to collect $14,000 insurance.

Manchester, formerly of Rochester, Minn., was convicted of shooting Parks at the instigation of Mrs. Sarah E. Powers, aged rooming house keeper, who was sentenced to life imprisonment.

547 Quarts Whisky Forfeited to U. S.

PAJAMA SKIRTS FAVORED BY MANY TENNIS PLAYERS

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 17.—Tennis players these days must be served right—when it comes to smart sports costumes. As we have previously remarked, even if the game is the thing, very few lady champions ever neglect their sartorial obligations and almost all of them endeavor to court smartness. And that is why so many tennis stars hie them to a smart dressmaker to have created for them tennis outfits that are chic, comfortable and attractive. Freak clothes are eschewed as are clothes that are uncompromisingly severe. As comfort and ease is the first qualification, some players are turning to pajama skirts to give them the necessary width of skirt. These pajamas so closely resemble a circular skirt that it is only when the player is in action that one realizes that the skirt is not what it seemed. Several of these new tennis costumes appeared recently and were the subject of much comment.

* * *

THE MOST DECORATIVE and brilliant Spanish tennis star, Senorita Lili d'Alvarez, appeared at the recent International Tournament at Auteil wearing some amusing but most sensible tennis costumes specially created for her by Mme. Schiaparelli. We have secured sketches of two of these models in the hope that they may prove of interest to tennis players who may be planning a strenuous session of tennis during their vacation. The first model shows a long wrap-around tunic, tying in back and fastening on the shoulder with clips. The tunic reaches nearly to the knees and under it is worn a divided skirt—really extremely wide, short pajamas. The material is white silk pique. Another tennis outfit for the same player is in white cotton honeycomb mesh. It is in two pieces, fastening with clips at each shoulder and short, very flaring pajamas, closely resembling a circular skirt.

Should, however, your set of answers be selected as one of the winning sets, and you have turned in a NEW subscription, you will get a DOUBLE AWARD. This means that if you win the first prize—$200.00—and have turned in a NEW subscription, you will be paid $400.00—the DOUBLE AWARD. And the same ratio will apply to the entire 135 cash awards announced in the list. If you are qualifying for the DOUBLE AWARD list of prizes send in your subscription immediately.

Bear in mind that $1,000.00 will be given away at the end of the contest—subscriptions or no subscriptions. Don't miss this opportunity to earn some much needed cash.

TWO DIE FROM AUTO INJURIES

Two men died last night from injuries suffered in automobile accidents, one in Duquesne and the other in East Liberty.

William Noel, 42, of 1015 Sherman avenue, Duquesne, died in McKeesport Hospital from injuries suffered when an automobile in which he was riding plunged down an embankment in South Duquesne avenue, Duquesne, Tuesday. Richard Weitzel, of Duquesne boulevard, Duquesne, driver of the car, was slightly injured. He told police, they said, that he swerved his machine to avoid hitting another which stopped suddenly in front of his car.

Injured in an automobile accident in East Liberty July 4, Carl Ott, 27, of 7146 Mt. Vernon street, died last night in St. Francis Hospital, the coroner's office reported.

Struck by an automobile in Lincoln avenue, near Lemington avenue, last night, Matthew DeSanta, 7, of 222 Gladfield street, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today. He is suffering from a probable skull fracture.

IRENE WINS 2ND BOUT OVER HOGS

MORTON GROVE, Ill., July 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, the famous former dancer, and William Schroeder, a farmer, were even today in their court encounters. Each had won one round.

A jury in the court of Justice of the Peace A. L. Sengstock evened the score for Mrs. McLaughlin last night when it returned a verdict finding Schroeder guilty of cruelty to animals, despite his testimony that he fed his hogs "the best garbage in Evanston."

Schroeder was recently acquitted of the disorderly conduct charge which grew out of his forcible eviction of Mrs. McLaughlin when she went to the farm to investigate conditions as an agent of the anti-cruelty society. He was fined $10 on the cruelty-to-animals charge, but said he would appeal.

The nuisance complaint is still pending, and its outcome will be the "rubber" case in the McLaughlin-Schroeder feud.

Los Angeles Mayor Recall Fight Pushed

At a magistrate's hearing, the third held in the case, Dr. Cattell, former coroner's physician of Philadelphia, charged that on June 18 Maj. Bullitt struck him a stinging blow over the ear as they discussed "a $6,000 debt of honor" which Dr. Cattell said Maj. Bullitt repudiated.

Debts Now Worry Only Party Who Does the Lending

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

German banks opened again yesterday, and everybody's feeling better except the Germans.

Fine idea to put the European financial system in charge of our Weather Bureau, which has been doing some pretty good guessing lately.

There ain't a whole lot of cash coins over there. One Berlin bank closed to count its money. And opened up again in three minutes with the job completed.

Borrowing and paying have changed a lot in the last 10 years. In the old days a debt worried the man who had to pay it.

Now, it's just the opposite. The trouble in Europe is that every nation has its own peculiar kind of money that is easy to borrow but hard to spend.

A man in Sweden with a pocketful of Turkish piasters is just as well off as a straving sailor chewing on an after-dinner mint.

The only certified button that doesn't sour on the vine is the United States dollar. That's because the American citizen is in back of it. About sixty yards or so.

Europe used to claim that Americans were dollar mad. We've improved since then. We can get mad over a dime now.

MODEL CHOSEN BEST IN STATE BY JUDGES

Other Winners Announced As Inspection of 105 Replicas Is Completed

A Pittsburgh boy has been selected as the master craftsman among boys of the state of Pennsylvania. He is Ferdinand Strothman, of 231 Waldorf street, North Side, selected by the judges who last night finished their inspection of the 105 miniature Napoleonic coaches submitted by boys of the state in the nationwide competition sponsored by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild of Detroit.

BUILDS SHIP MODELS

Young Strothman is no newcomer as a master craftsman. According to his father, L. B. Strothman, who was present last night as his son was selected the winner, Ferdinand has won several awards during the last few years in similar competitions.

He built a miniature of the warship "Old Ironsides," which created so much attention that he received from government officials in Washington, D. C., a small piece of wood from the original ship.

At other times he has won trophies for building miniature ships and airplanes. He is 18 years old and recently graduated from high school.

JUNIOR GROUP WINNER

First award in the junior group of boys went to Raymond F. Sekulski, of Harrisburg, who finished with a score of 381 points out of a possible 500. Other awards were as follows: Second place in the senior group to Paul R. Rempp, Springhouse, Pa.; third place, senior group, to Paul Williams, Quakertown, Pa.; second place, junior group, to Charles Habb, Jr., Ambler; third place, junior group, to George W. Gentzler, York.

Craftsmanship awards were made to Frank Landis, Lancaster; Melwyn Yohe, New Kensington; Chester McGear, Philadelphia; Bernard Strosahl, Honesdale; Richard Hames, Honesdale; Wells Stackhouse, Philadelphia; Wilmer Hausman, Allentown; Joseph Sekulski, Harrisburg, and Chester Geist, of Tyrone.

Strothman and Sekulski will each be given in addition to $50 in gold, a trip to Detroit, where their coaches will be entered in the national competition in August. Also the coaches belonging to Rempp and Habb will be entered at Detroit for the national awards. Should either or all of these boys win in Detroit, they will be given a four-year university scholarship valued at $5,000.

NATIONAL CONTEST

The miniature coach building competition which was carried on nationally by the Craftsmen's Guild of Detroit, was sponsored in Pennsylvania by the Sun-Telegraph. Judgings in every state in the Union are taking place this month in preparation for the national competition next month at Detroit.

Judges who have been working for two weeks in the local contest were William Brown, of Detroit; Edgar Phillips, of Pittsburgh, and Arthur Paulsen, Boy Scout commissioner of Allegheny County. The coaches were judged on a point basis. A coach that was perfect in every detail would have been given a score of 500 points. Strothman's coach made 402 points.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

If you want to see lots of our country in one day and all kinds of it, leave Fort Worth in the morning from the fine new airport and fly across Texas. (And brother you will know you crossed something.) Abilene, Big Springs, El Paso, Douglas, Tucson, Phoenix and you will be in Los Angeles at seven p. m. Had a great new dish last night. Open all the cans of tomatoes you have, all the cans of cove oysters, lots of sliced raw onions and mix 'em in a big bowl. It's a sort of soup-salad. It's called "We have scraped the bottom salad." You get it at Shady Oak Farm, Fort Worth.

AWARDED POST GIVEN UP BY WOMAN

'Too Tender Hearted' View Held of Woman Failing to Collect $4,883 Due Borough

Avalon has a male tax collector today, Eric B. Logan having been elected by Borough Council last night after they voted, behind closed doors, to accept the resignation of Mrs. Marie G. Scott who has been twice elected by the voters of the borough.

Mrs. Scott appeared before Council with her attorney, Earl E. McMonigle, and presented her resignation. Illness of her mother was given as a reason for retirement.

$4,883 DUE BOROUGH

A report from the bonding company to Council placed the amount due the borough from Mrs. Scott at $4,883. This amount, according to her attorney, is largely made up of delinquencies in which Mrs. Scott was too tender-hearted to press for collection.

Mrs. Scott, after the meeting with Council, said:

"I believe the people of the borough all have confidence in me. Many have told me so. Well, we'll see how it works with a man on the job."

The law provides that the borough tax collector is responsible for the collection of the full amount of taxes due. Where the taxes are unpaid, the collector has the authority to levy on personal property or to put the delinquent in jail.

RECORDS CONFUSED

No jail sentences have been imposed by Mrs. Scott. According to persons in close touch with borough affairs, she has allowed persons who were in financial difficulties to make part payments. This complicated bookkeeping and was said to be partly responsible for a confused condition of the records. She has also been given a number of bad checks by taxpayers.

The bonding company, which audited Mrs. Scott's books after borough Council discovered an error in her June report, will protect the borough against loss. Mrs. Scott's attorney said last night she will make good any shortage.

Logan, the new collector, is a veteran of the World War. He had previously been named deputy collector by the surety company.

JUNIOR COLLEGE MOVE URGED

Dr. George F. Zook, president of the University of Akron, was the principal speaker at an all day conference of educators on the junior college movement yesterday at the University of Pittsburgh. Sessions were held in the new building of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania.

The junior college should have been recognized 40 years ago, Dr. Zook believes. It has not been, for two reasons, he said. First accrediting agencies have insisted on separating junior colleges from four-year institutions in order to secure a separate type of work. Second, public school officials have not given as much attention to the junior college as they have to the junior high school. The junior college has definite functions, according to Dr. Zook:

"The first half-year, at least, of college work is a repetition of high school work. There is splendid chance and opportunity in the junior college for vocational guidance. The idea is feasible and economical because of increased population in community centers and because more children want to go beyond high school now than ever."

Victim of Fall Into Well In Hospital After Rescue

As a result of falling 40 feet into a well from which he was removing an old pump at his home, Jesse Reese, 45, of Francis street, Homeville, was in a serious condition today in Homestead Hospital with a possible fractured skull, a fractured nose and jaw, and lacerations. He was rescued by neighbors and firemen.

The accident occurred late yesterday, police say, when Reese, repairing the pump for his mother, Mrs. Mary Reese, leaned too far over the edge of the well and fell in. Homeville firemen lowered Jesse Delbridge, 32, and Samuel Oliver, 52, into the well. They fastened ropes about Reese's body and he was pulled from the well.

He was treated by Dr. H. H. Hartley and taken to the Homestead Hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

There were about one and a half feet of water in the well.

$500 in Clothing and Jewels Taken; Bogus Repairman Steals Woman's Radio

More than $300 in loot was obtained by robbers who last night ransacked the second floor of the home of John Henry, at 1924 Beechwood boulevard.

The home of Samuel Miller at 3255 Ward street, also was visited by robbers. Jewelry valued at $300 was reported stolen.

A man posing as a radio repairman stole the radio of Mrs. D. C. Coppler, of 505 East Lacock street, yesterday.

An armed Negro obtained $20 in a holdup late yesterday of a P. H. Butler store at 1706 Wylie avenue. Frances Levy, the manager, was alone in the store when the thug entered, police said.

J. B. Loughrey, of 1804 Morningside avenue, left his clothing in a police patrol yesterday afternoon to help police dive for the bodies of a man and his wife drowned when their automobile backed into the Highland Park reservoir. After their recovery, Loughrey walked into the patrol to dress and discovered that a watch he had left in a coat pocket had been stolen.

DEPUTY BEATEN BY MOB, 2 HELD

Fred Kearns, Communist party organizer, and George Brown, 40, a Negro, of Berthoud street, were in the County Jail today as a result of an attack upon Deputy Sheriff John McVey, 37, who is in Mercey Hospital with a fractured jaw and possible brain concussion.

McVey was attacked by a mob of Negroes while serving a writ of possession on the home of Mon Zumer, at 2639 Wylie avenue yesterday. Kearns, alleged leader, ordered the deputy to halt the procedure. Ignored, Kearns was said to have told his followers to carry the furniture and household goods, which had been removed into the street, back into the house.

Brown, who was alleged to have struck McVey, was charged with assault and battery, interfering with officers and obstructing process of serving a writ. Kearns was charged with interfering with officers and obstructing process of serving a writ.

HUSBAND SUED BY WIFE

Charging that her husband conspired to defraud her of her half-interest in their bakery business, Mrs. Sara R. Feldman filed an equity suit in Common Pleas Court, asking an accounting and dissolution of the partnership, a receiver for the Feldman bakery at 2034 Murray avenue and an injunction to restrain her husband, Louis Feldman, and Louis Rosenbloom from conducting the business.

She said she and Feldman were married October 31, 1923, and he deserted her without cause June 2, this year. They opened a bakery at 1907 Murray avenue in 1929 and on December 1, 1930, opened a branch at 2034 Murray avenue, her suit stated. She charged that her husband ousted her from the business June 10, abandoned the store at 1907 Murray avenue and transferred its assets to the store at 2034 Murray avenue, and conspired to defraud her by assigning the business to Rosenbloom.

The schedule calls for three hours and 55 minutes flying time between the two cities. Lockheed cabin planes will be used on the route, officials said.

Two additional planes, making round trips between Pittsburgh and New York, will be placed in service about August 1 by the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., officials said today. The new schedules are being arranged to meet the demand for reservations. The planes will carry 12 passengers and two pilots.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 17.—(AP.)—Howard Hissom was ordered to appear in Criminal Court today to answer a charge of neglect of his children, brought by officers who, investigating complaints of neighbors, found his 9-year-old daughter chained to a bed in the Hissom home.

A 14-year-old son was said to have admitted chaining his sister to the bed. He was left in charge of the family of four children, he said, while his mother and father went on a 150-mile automobile trip into Virginia.

BATHER DROWNS IN PARK POOL

Patrick Elwood, 35, a World War veteran, of 3047 Brighton road, North Side, was pronounced dead late yesterday after lifesaving experts worked over two hours in an attempt to resuscitate him following the recovery of his unconscious form from the swimming pool at Willow Beach Park, near Houston.

Elwood, it was said, dove into the pool and failed to come up immediately. When he came to the surface lifeguards dragged him out of the water, but attempts to resuscitate him failed.

Elwood and three companions went to the park after Elwood had deposited his bonus check, which he received from the government yesterday. He lived with his widowed mother, Mrs. Sarah Elwood.

Transfer of Anne Haynes, 33, no home, who was sentenced to the workhouse on a disorderly conduct charge at a hearing before Burgess R. A. Morrow, of West Homestead, was hastened late yesterday after, police say, she made two attempts to end her life in the West Homestead Police Station.

The prisoner, arrested with Arthur Weaver, 35, of Pittston, at Eighth avenue and Neel street, West Homestead, was said to have butted her head against a steel cell door, necessitating her removal to the Homestead Hospital. Returned to the police station, she is said by police to have been found a short time later, by Sergt. Fred Seaman and Patrick Tierney, hanging by a belt from a cell door. She was cut down by the officers and treated by Dr. J. A. Walsh.

Weaver was discharged at the hearing.

Cellar Rum Resort, Says Wife; Wins Divorce

The cellar of her home was a drinking rendezvous for young men and a shelter for hunting dogs, and her objections met with beatings from her husband, Mrs. Florence E. Wagner, West Park, McKees Rocks, testified against Robert W. Wagner, 19 Norwood street, McKees Rocks. She was granted a divorce in Common Pleas Court by Judge William H. McNaugher.

She testified Wagner absented himself on business trips and locked the compartment of food supplies so she had to seek food elsewhere. The privacy of their home was invaded by strangers furnished keys by her husband and its peace disturbed by carousing, loud talking and cursing, Mrs. Wagner charged.

She said her husband beat her with his fists, once giving her black eyes, cut her with a hunting knife and threatened her with a beer bottle. The case was contested and Judge McNaugher's opinion stated:

"He denies beatings but admits the making of beer in the cellar and the presence of young boys engaged in drinking, with his own drinking, the cause of differences. It is plain the parties cannot live together."

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Resinol clears them away

"My complexion was very poor because of pimples and blackheads which covered my face and neck. I had been advised to try Resinol Soap and Ointment, but had tried so many other things without success I was disgusted with everything. However, a friend urged me to try a sample anyway. In three days' time the improvement was so great I could hardly believe it. I will always have a word of praise for Resinol." (Signed)—

CAIN RUMORED AS TREASURER ASPIRANT

Sheriff Denies He Plans Action 'Within 48 Hours'; Would Have Kline's Aid

Rumors have been circulated by usually competent observers that Sheriff Robert S. Cain would announce his candidacy for county treasurer within 48 hours. Replying to questions yesterday he said:

"Well, I can say there is nothing to it, at least as far as the 48 hours is concerned."

Cain has been mentioned for the place for some time and if he decides to run he would doubtless have the support of Mayor Charles H. Kline. Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy is believed to be favored for the post by County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

PEACE MOVE MADE

Duncan McCallum, personnel secretary for Gov. Pinchot, was in Pittsburgh yesterday for the purpose, it was believed, of attempting to heal the breach between County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and James F. Malone, state secretary of property and supplies.

McCallum left for Harrisburg without announcing the result of his visit and McGovern was inaccessible for questioning. Malone was in Harrisburg.

McGovern was said to have fallen out with Malone over the distribution of state jobs and to have ended negotiations for making McGovern the keystone of an independent ticket that Malone was trying to organize.

Malone was in Pittsburgh Monday and was questioned about the wrangle. He said it was only a disagreement and when pressed, referred inquirers to McGovern. Malone said he was committed only to three candidates for City Council, Charles Anderson and Robert Garland, incumbents, and former Councilman P. J. McArdle.

On the county side, Malone was credited with trying to surround McGovern with friends of former State Senator M. G. Leslie who are seeking re-election, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley.

ARMSTRONG, MELLON MEET

Although the Courthouse is buzzing with speculation as to who is going to run with who in the Republican primaries, no enlightening statements have emanated from the principals.

County Commissioner Armstrong spent more than an hour yesterday afternoon with former State Chairman W. L. Mellon at the latter's Frick Annex office. After the meeting he smilingly said:

"I am still running by myself."

There is a probability that he will confer again today with Mellon and that kinks in the slate-making will be ironed out.

United States Senator James J. Davis conferred with Armstrong at his office immediately after he had talked with Mellon. But Senator Davis, insofar as the local political situation is concerned, professed complete ignorance. Davis left town last night.

HUNDREDS GET BABY CONTEST NOMINATIONS

Beauty Only Factor to Be Considered by Judges; Clothes Not to Count

Hundreds of Pittsburgh's most beautiful children have already been nominated for the Sun-Telegraph-Kroger Stores baby beauty contest which is to be the main feature of the Kroger Stores' picnic at Kennywood Park, August 4.

It will be recalled that this contest was inaugurated last summer and at that time brought together a surprising throng of really beautiful children. From the present indications it would seem that this year's contest is attracting very much more interest and attention than that of last summer.

Child beauty is the only thing that counts in this contest. Clothes will not be considered—neither will the physical condition be considered other than as it would apply to the beauty of the child. In other words, this is not a contest to find the healthiest or the best dressed babies—beauty is the only thing that counts.

There are three classes for boys and girls under 5 years of age and glorious silver cups will be awarded as prizes to the children selected as the most beautiful—three in each class. Impartial judges will make the awards.

Among the scores of babies already entered are Phyllis Elaine, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leight, 483 Second street, Pitcairn; Joan Elise, 3, daughter and Eberhardt, Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eberhardt Rechtin, 646 Maple lane, Sewickley; Robert, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Keifer, 2806 Jane street; Sylvia May, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Douglas, 410 West street.

Entry blanks are now ready at your nearest Kroger Store. There is no cost to you. The Sun-Telegraph and the Kroger Stores will welcome your children in this unique contest. Enter your babies today—win one of the glorious silver cups.

REFORMERS TO HAVE TICKET

The Citizens' Committee of McKees Rocks that has been advocating the entrance of state police into the investigation of the bombing of the home of Thomas J. Conley, has decided to enter its own slate in the political fight at the primary election.

A mass meeting is to be held next week at which time the reform group will select candidates for four councilmanic seats; three school directors; three constables and for one of the two offices of justice of the peace.

This action was decided upon last night at a meeting of the committee in the Slavish Building and Loan Association Building, Olivia street.

Conley today denied he had told county detectives that Frank Lackovitch, of 306 Campbell street, his neighbor, had made threats against his life. Lackovitch is building a new home adjoining that of Conley and it was damaged slightly by the blast.

Lackovitch, arrested when county detectives found liquor when they entered his residence during their investigation of the bombing, was to be given a hearing today before Alderman George J. Anderson.

OHIO RUM CHIEF, AIDE SLAIN

CLEVELAND, July 17.—(AP.)—Two men slain at Toledo early today were identified as Al Jaffe, reputed chieftain in the liquor business here, and his henchman, Harry Gertzlein, according to relatives at the Jaffe home.

The identification was made by Cleveland friends who flew to Toledo as soon as they heard of the slaying.

On the leg of the bird was a red band with the number, 30-30.

CRABMEAT SALAD—Six medium sized tomatoes, peeled and chilled, 2 cups flaked crabmeat, ⅔ cup celery cut in small pieces, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, 1 tablespoon minced onion, mayonnaise.

When the tomatoes are thoroughly chilled, slice a thin cap from the top of each tomato. Scoop out most of the center, leaving a thin wall or shell. Season with salt and pepper and lemon juice. Mix crabmeat with salt, pepper, minced onion, celery and sufficient mayonnaise to hold it together. Lightly pack into the tomato shells, top with a little mayonnaise. Garnish each salad with potato chips, 2 pieces of cheese, stuffed celery and 3 quarter slices of hard cooked eggs.

* * *

BAKED STUFFED EGGPLANT—Cook an eggplant 15 minutes in boiling salted water to cover. Remove a slice from the top and carefully scoop out the pulp with a spoon, but do not break the skin of the eggplant. Chop the pulp fine, and add 1 cup soft, stale bread crumbs. Cook ½ tablespoon finely chopped onion in 3 slices bacon fat or in 2 tablespoons butter for five minutes. Add to the pulp, together with salt and pepper, and a little water if not moist enough. Cook five minutes; then cool and add 1 well beaten egg. Stuff the eggplant with this filling, cover with buttered bread crumbs, and bake 25 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

* * *

APRICOT EMERALD SALAD—Six apricots, halved and seeded; 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1½ tablespoons confectioner's sugar, 1 package cream cheese, 2 tablespoons pecan meats, chopped; ¼ cup mayonnaise, 1 cup white grapes, seeded and stuffed with pimento.

Sprinkle apricot halves with lemon juice and sugar. Chill 10 minutes. Arrange crisp lettuce in salad bowl. Place stuffed grapes in apricot halves and arrange apricots and remaining grapes in salad bowl. Serve with mayonnaise to which softened cheese and nuts have been added. Serves six.

* * *

PINEAPPLE MINT BAVARIAN—Soften 1 tablespoon gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water. Bring the contents of a can of crushed pineapple, 1-3 cup mint jelly and 3 tablespoons sugar to boiling and simmer until jelly is dissolved. Cool and when just about to set add 1 cup heavy beaten cream. Serves eight.

* * *

SALAD TEMPTATION—Two large pears, sliced; 3 teaspoons sugar, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 cucumber, sliced; ½ cup mayonnaise.

Combine pears, sugar and lemon juice. Add salt to cucumber and toss lightly together with pears. Arrange on crisp lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise.

* * *

SUNSET SALAD—Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water, then dissolve in 1 cup boiling water. Add 2 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and ¼ teaspoon salt and cool. Add half the sirup from a can of crushed pineapple, and when it begins to set add half the pine-

Cheese Has Abundance of Beneficial Ingredients

Dr. Copeland recommends American made product, but warns that it will prove more digestible if eaten as part of the regular meal instead of as a dessert or during the hour before retiring.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York

Americans are becoming more and more accustomed to the various cheese products. Cheese is now a staple part of our diet.

Cheese is good even if it carries no foreign label. Cheese made in this country is cheaper in price than imported products and just as nutritious. American manufacturers have learned to make many of the cheeses of distinctive flavor, originally imported from Europe.

Cottage and cream cheeses have become increasingly popular. Pimento cheese and Swiss cheese are frequently served in the form of sandwiches and with crackers.

For many years cheese was believed to be difficult to digest. It is true that following the eating of cheese there may be marked discomfort. But this is not due so much to cheese itself as to the unsuitable time at which this food is usually eaten.

Too many persons eat cheese at the wrong hour. The eating of cheese between meals, late at night or at the end of a large meal, is a practice not to be recommended.

Cheese is a highly nutritive food. It should be included as a part of a meal. The protein and fat found in one pound of cheese equal the same ingredients in a gallon of milk. They exceed those found in the same weight of the best steak.

The cheese retains the lime, phosphorus and sulphur of the milk. It also has appreciable amounts of iron and of vitamin A.

Please remember that cheese is a food, not a dessert merely. It should be used to replace other items which carry similar properties. It is an economical food, and may be eaten at all times.

Combine mayonnaise, pineapple, sugar and lemon juice. Fold into whipped cream. Makes 1½ cups dressing.

Mix ¼ cup evaporated milk and ¼ cup water and add alternately with 1¾ cups cake flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt, well sifted. Add 2 tablespoons caramel flavoring and then 1 cup nuts mixed with 2 tablespoons flour. Pour into well greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 to 60 minutes. May be served plain or iced with caramel icing.

* * *

* * *

ITALIAN PARFAIT — Boil ¾ cup of sugar and ½ cup of water until it spins a thread. Beat 2 egg whites and pinch of salt until thick. Add the syrup slowly, beating constantly. Stir occasionally as it cools. When cold add 1 teaspoon of vanilla, ¼ cup of puree of fresh fruit of the kind you wish. Then fold in 1 cup of cream beaten until stiff and pour into the refrigerator tray. Allow to freeze without stirring.

* * *

FILLED ICE CREAM CAKE—Bake an angel or sponge cake—you can always buy a perfectly delicious one if the day is too hot for baking—and divide into two layers. Cover top of one layer and the sides of both with the following icing: Boil 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar and a few grains salt to a syrup that will spin a thread. Pour over 2 squares of melted chocolate, stirring constantly; flavor with vanilla. At serving time put a layer of ice cream between the sponge cake layers, top with tinted whipped cream and serve immediately.

* * *

BANANA AND TOMATO SALAD—2 tomatoes, 3 ripe bananas, ¼ cup French dressing, lettuce. Arrange lettuce on a platter. Place on each leaf a thick slice of peeled tomato and on this arrange sliced bananas. Cover with French dressing and garnish with mayonnaise.

* * *

Then fold in the well drained, crushed pineapple. Chill well. Pile into glass sherbets and garnish petal fashion with sliced peaches or orange sections dipped in granulated sugar. Serves eight.

* * *

STRAWBERRY BAVARIAN CREAM—Soak 1 tablespoon gelatine in ¼ cup cold water for five minutes, and stand the cup in hot water until the gelatine dissolves. Strain the gelatine mixture into 1 cup of strawberry juice and pulp which has been mixed with 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Add ½ cup sugar, and when dissolved, set the bowl containing the mixture into a pan of cold water; stir until it begins to thicken, then fold in 1½ cups cream, whipped stiff. Turn into a wet mold lined with halved strawberries and chill.

* * *

JELLIES HAM LOAF—2 cups minced boiled ham, 1½ tablespoons gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1¾ cups boiling stock, 4 tablespoons chopped green pepper, ¼ cup chopped beet pickles, ¼ teaspoon white pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 2 hard-cooked eggs.

Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Dissolve in boiling stock. Add seasonings. Combine the ham, pickles and gelatine mixture. Decorate a ring mold with slices of hard-cooked egg. Turn in the ham and chill. Unmold and fill center with mixed vegetable salad.

* * *

MOLDED LAMB TONGUES—Cook lamb tongues until tender in hot water to which sale, a few celery seeds and 1 small onion have been added as seasonings. When done, cool, remove skin and slice and reserve the liquid in which cooked. Strain this liquid and for each pint add 1 tablespoon gelatine. Chill a mold and pour in a little of the stock, add a layer of the sliced tongue, then more stock, and repeat until the meat is all used. The meat should be covered with stock. Clara, Lu 'n' Em

So many things attracted our attention when we visited the Chicago radio show not long ago that we plumb forgot to tell you about meeting those famous "small town gossips"—Clara, Lu 'n' Em.

They're regular girls, all under 30.

Clara is tall and dark, with twinkling eyes. She is a Des Moines, Ia., girl. She says of her radio "husband," Charles: "He wouldn't set the world afire, but if it did catch fire he'd help put it out."

Lu is another Iowa lassie, born in Mt. Pleasant, where her father taught in business college. Lu is smaller than Clara or Em, has copper hair and freckles. She won a dramatic medal while still in high school, and when she went to Northwestern College she was elected to the sorority of which Clara was president.

Em comes from away out in Los Angeles, but claims Peoria, Ill., as the scene of her girlhood. She wrote the senior class play while in high school, and after attending Bradley for two years, she joined the other two on Northwestern's campus.

They take their radio work seriously. They used to make their notes in helter-skelter fashion, but now they prepare their skits in a business-like way—with Lu doing the typing.

Question a Day:

Do Gene and Glenn write their own continuity and which team is more popular, Gene and Glenn or Amos 'n' Andy?—Russell C., Edgewood.

Answer—Cal DeVol, the song writer, who scored with "Alabamy Lullaby" and other hits, creates radio situations for Gene and Glenn. Determining the relative popularity of these teams is a problem as they seem to have distinct and different audiences. We have discovered, however, that Gene and Glenn are more popular in their home town than Amos 'n' Andy in Chicago.

WJAS carries the athletic meet between Yale, Harvard, Oxford and Cambridge at London, tomorrow afternoon at 5 . . .

Rudy Vallee's system of using colored lights for signaling his orchestra on choruses, encores, etc., was employed by the young maestro in Pittsburgh last summer . . .

John Charles Thomas, operatic baritone, is billed for a series of eight Thursday night broadcasts on WJZ-KDKA starting July 30.

We think the Rondoliers directed by Zoel Parenteau would make a dandy network feature . . . Sara Logan, guest soloist last night, was in fine voice after her recent illness . . .

Another exceptional program was the "Radio Trip" on WCAE . . . splendid music by Clifford Marshall's Orchestra, Lawson Sisters, Kay Kronick, Raymond Griffin, Paul Gannon . . . and a clever continuity written by Dave Olson, whose talents in radio seem to multiply daily.

Lou Abel and his radio company of 30 children have been booked to open a new theater in Rochester, Pa., in September.

Horses . . . KDKA takes the Arlington classic tomorrow at 5.

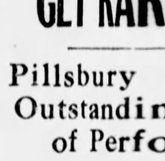
RADIO PUBLIC TO GET RARE TREAT

Pillsbury Presents Outstanding Group of Performers

Pillsbury Songbirds

Every Friday night over the Columbia network the people of this vicinity will hear an unusual new radio program. Critics who have heard the preliminary rehearsals say that this program, "The Pillsbury Pageant" will become radio's most popular musical hour.



Sam Lanin

Sam Lanin is a man who is famous for his unusual ability in the special arrangement of popular and semi-popular music. He is conductor of the 32-piece Pillsbury orchestra, a group of strings and woodwinds, picked from the best orchestral talent in this country. Under Mr. Lanin's direction, the orchestra will play only special arrangements of light tuneful melodies — the symphonic dance music arrangements for which Mr. Lanin is so well-known.

Toscha Seidel

Toscha Seidel, one of the world's great violinists, will appear as soloprincipal. This will be good news to the thousands of people who have heard him in previous radio appearances over the Columbia network.

Theo Karle

Theo Karle, lyric tenor, and the Pillsbury Songbirds, a unique mixed quartet, will sing. Mr. Karle is a man who has made his mark in opera as well as in the lighter field, and his previous radio appearances have won him an enthusiastic following.

The Pillsbury Songbirds compose a quartet which is capable of delightful music. Each member is a concert soloist of outstanding ability.

This unusually entertaining program is sponsored by the Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, makers of Pillsbury's Best Flour, Pillsbury's Pancake Flour, Pillsbury's Cake Flour, Pillsbury's Wheat Bran, and other members of Pillsbury's famous Family of Foods. It will be heard every Friday night at this same hour over the Columbia network.

GEHRIG MAY BE NEW HOME RUN KING

IF BABE RUTH is beaten out for home run honors again this year, the new king of swat is likely to be a teammate. Last season it was Hack Wilson who outslugged the Bambino, 56 homers to 49, and this year there is a strong chance that it will be Lou Gehrig. Of course, the Babe himself isn't out of the race, by any means. He may yet swing into his old-time stride and finish ahead of all rivals, but judging from Gehrig's present pace it's going to be a difficult task for anybody to beat out Lou for the laurels.

Lou Gehrig

While the Pirate pitchers were holding Chuck Klein to hits shorter than homers in the first five games of the series here this week, Gehrig took advantage of the opportunity to draw ahead of the Philly swatsmith with whom he had been tied at 23. Two four-baggers in a doubleheader on Tuesday and one in yesterday's game gave the Yankee first baseman a total of 26 for the season. That put him three ahead of Klein and four ahead of Ruth up to today.

THERE IS LITTLE doubt that Gehrig is out for the home run crown in earnest this year, and with 74 games yet to be played by the Yanks, the remainder of the season may see the greatest drive of Lou's career. Even if he doesn't land on top he appears likely at least to beat his own best previous record in homers.

That mark was 47, made in 1927. If he keeps up his gait of 26 in the first part of the season, the slugging first sacker will beat that total, making it necessary for a rival to come close to Ruth's record of 60 to win out.

GEHRIG IS AFTER other honors, too, and is believed to have a fair chance to capture no fewer than three titles. He is by no means out of the running for the American League batting championship, and besides he is headed for a big total in runs driven home. He has already knocked in 92, and may beat his own American League record of 175, set in 1927, if he does not reach Hack Wilson's all-major mark of 190, hung up last year.

Meanwhile, Gehrig is also adding steadily to his record as an iron man, the only player in the majors with a chance to approach Everett Scott's mark for consecutive games played. Up to today Lou has played in 967 straight contests.

WHEN THEY WON their fourth consecutive victory yesterday, the Pirates equaled their longest winning streak of the season. Incidentally, they made sixth place safe for the present and put themselves in a good position to start a drive in pursuit of the Braves and fifth position in their four-game series with Bill McKechnie's gang, starting with a doubleheader tomorrow. The Bucs appear to have recovered from the setbacks they suffered in the dual bills with the Cubs and Reds last Saturday and Sunday. They haven't played a poor game since, their only defeat in the meantime having been suffered by a 1-to-0 score.

Johnny O'Connell

JOHNNY O'CONNELL, Verona citizen and former Pirate catcher, who has been on three different rosters in as many leagues already this season, has made a fine start on his latest job. Opening with Baltimore in the International, he was farmed to Springfield, Mass., in the Eastern, and when Springfield sent him back he was optioned to Atlanta in the Southern.

O'Connell was the hero of an Atlanta victory over Nashville. He took a headlong dive into a dugout to make a sensational catch of a foul fly for the final out of the game, ending a Nashville rally and winning the contest for Atlanta, 6 to 5. Though he lay on his back at the bottom of the concrete dugout for several minutes after making the catch, completely knocked out, Johnny escaped injury.

AMONG THE SPECTATORS at Forbes Field was George Gibson, former Pirate manager and catcher. He held a little reunion with Deacon Phillippe and the two fanned over the days when they were local battery mates.

Gibson has been working on his farm in London, Ontario. He is en route with his family by automobile for San Antonio, Tex., to visit his daughter, who is the wife of Firman Warwick, another ex-Pirate catcher, and now city engineer of San Antonio.

A TELEGRAM FROM Fresno, Cal., signed by the mayor of that city, was received at Pirate headquarters, stating that a man who had claimed to be Claude Ritchey, former baseman of the Pittsburgh club, had died there and requested that money be forwarded to defray the cost of burial. Doubting the identity of the dead man or the authenticity of the telegram, President Barney Dreyfuss phoned Ritchey's mother in Emlenton, Pa., and was relieved to learn that his old keystone star, an important cog in the Pirate machine from 1900 to 1906, inclusive, is in perfect health and working every day.

HELEN WILLS MOODY wants to correct any impression that may exist that her tennis play this year is intended merely for recreation. She says it means a real competitive comeback, that she has returned to the game to stay, and that whether or not she regains the American championship she is going to head for Wilbledon and other big tournaments again next year.

Incidentally, Mrs. Moody announces for the first time that for a decade she has disliked the nickname of "Poker Face." It was given to her when she won the girls' singles in 1921, but never, until now, has she spoken her mind about it. "I never liked that name," she said. "I did not care for it at any time."

WHILE HELENE MADISON, present swimming queen, is seeking more world records in the women's national outdoor A. A. U. championships, now in progress in New York, a former occupant of the throne, though within 10 minutes' ride of the scene, will not have a chance to watch her in action.

That former crown-wearer is Gertrude Ederle. She is teaching swimming at the Bronxdale pool in New York and says she won't have a chance to get away long enough to take a look at Miss Madison, whom she has never seen in the water.

Gertrude Ederle

BUT MISS EDERLE is convinced, nevertheless, that the present champion is all that has been claimed for her. "At the Women's Swimming Association," she says, "they tell me Helene has everything—a good takeoff, nice turns, long arms and legs and lots of strength. Say, you don't need much more to swim the English Channel." Gertrude, by the way, will celebrate, on August 6, the fifth anniversary of her own achievement in swimming the English Channel, the first woman ever to accomplish the feat. She says she doesn't mourn her drop from worldwide prominence to comparative obscurity, but takes it as a matter of course. "I wanted to do the thing no woman had yet achieved, and after doing it I didn't expect the world to owe me anything," she adds.

U. S., ENGLAND BREAK EVEN IN SINGLES

By MICHAEL WILSON
International News Service.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM PARIS, July 17.—Great Britain and the United States divided honors in the first day's play of the Davis Cup inter-zone final tennis matches today, each winning one match in the men's singles play.

Frank Shields

Frank X. Shields defeated the brawny British star, Fred Perry, 10-8, 6-4, 6-2, to even the score after his fellow American, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., youthful Wimbledon champion, had bowed to H. W. (Bunny) Austin, 2-6, 6-0, 8-6, 7-5, in the first duel.

Shields was complete master of the situation after the first set. Rushing to the net time and again, he bewildered the Britisher, who was forced back to the baseline and cheated of his chances for placements. The American scored two beautiful service aces in the final game of the match.

SERVICE EXCELLENT

The American scored throughout chiefly through his excellent service and stinging forehand placement drives.

Wood's defeat by Austin was not unexpected. Bunny, after the first set, exhibited beautiful control and keen judgment in moving up for decisive volleys. The Englishman's service was the more effective, although both showed weaknesses in this respect. Wood made a gallant effort to save the match by winning four straight games in the fourth set, but was unable to sustain his drive.

1,000 FANS SEE DUELS

Today's matches were sparsely attended, only about 1,000 persons being in the stands.

The battle to determine France's challenger for the world championship tennis trophy will be continued tomorrow with the doubles match, in which the American team of John Van Ryn and George M. Lott, Jr., will oppose Fred Perry and George Hughes. The final two singles will be played Sunday.

Crabbe, Hollywood Team Swim Victors

HONOLULU, July 17.—(AP.)—Honors were widely scattered in the closing events of the National A. A. U. swimming championships here last night.

Donald Horn, of the Lake Shore A. C., Chicago, won the 440-yard breast-stroke event in 6:19 4-5.

Clarence (Buster) Crabbe, Honolulu merman, who paddles for the Los Angeles A. C., successfully defended his 880-yard free-style championship with a time of 10:37 3-5.

Farid Samaika, of the Hollywood team, ran up a point total of 101.46 to retain his platform diving title.

Crabbe, with 200 points, was the individual high scorer. The Hollywood team won the meet on points with 49.

The question of whether the Butler Club team shall advance to Section I and replace Shannopin, in the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania team league, is being decided today at the Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Shannopin, last on the lists in Section I, must defeat the Section II champion, Butler, if it is to continue in its present group next season. Butler entered the league only last spring.

A few more shekels were gathered into the coffers to pay the expenses of the city's team to the national public links championship at St. Paul next month, when one of the largest crowds ever to turn out trailed private and public links stars in their team match at Schenley Park yesterday, the former group winning, 15½ to 8½. A heavy cyclone-like windstorm, followed by a torrential rain, just as the contests were about to start, almost caused postponement. Kenneth C. Witherow, U. S. G. A. committeeman, was in charge.

Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Highland, had the best medal score for the day, a 61—four under par—having carded 32 out and 30 in. John Graham, of South Hills, had 63, and John Pasikowski, of Schenley, and I. W. Danforth, of Oakmont, scored 64s.

The Blue team, captained by James Hammond, defeated the Reds, led by A. J. Diebold, 31 to 27, in a close dinner team match at the Pittsburgh Field Club yesterday.

The Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania staged a one-day event at St. Clair yesterday, and, in spite of her infected finger, Anieanette Hunter, of Oakmont, carded a gross 83 to cop top honors. Mrs. D. A. Garber, Stanton Heights star, was second with an 89. Mrs. A. D. Campbell, of Oakmont, had low net in the first division, with 96-22—74, and Mrs. E. W. Courtney,

One of the few remaining games in the first half of the West Penn League will be played this evening at Garfield Park, Reliance Life and Martin battling.

It is the final game Reliance must play and win before meeting the Homestead Aces Tuesday at Langley Field. Jimmy Fuller has been grooming Eddie Imhoff for the game, with Stan Freizel as the other end of the battery.

Capt. Dutch Spencer is scheduled to twirl for Reliance, providing his back muscle works into shape. He was in a bad way at the end of the B. & O. game, even though he won.

In the City League the fans have three games over which to become enthused. Homewood engages the Thomas Club at the Playgrounds, and Hank Daly will probably send Jimmy Bradley to the mound to oppose Sammy Leon. South Hills fans will get a kick out of the Book Shoe-Dormont battle. The battle of the North Side will feature the Bucks clashing with the Civics at Wilson avenue.

Next week will see the opening of the second half in the Commercial and Industrial and Steel City leagues.

St. Joachim's is having a tough time getting its second-half contests carded since Moultrie Park went out of commission following heavy storms. Manager Mike Kudrau was promised by the Bureau of Recreation the field would be in shape for last evening, but the diamond is still littered with rubbish.

The Homestead Grays oppose Homewood, at Homewood, this evening. Jimmy Bradley is likely to face the Grays.

Hurler Dives Into Pool for $9.50 Profit

ST. LOUIS, July 17.—(AP.)—Pea Ridge Day, Brooklyn pitcher, will go to great lengths to make $9.50. He jumped into a pool of goldfish in a hotel lobby, new suit and all, when his teammates offered him $11. Cleaning the suit cost him $1.50.

SARAH PALFREY IN NET FINAL

LONGWOOD CRICKET CLUB, Brookline, Mass., July 17.—(INS.)—Miss Sara Palfrey, one of the famous Brookline tennis sisters, and Miss Dorothy Andrus, the Stamford (Conn.) luminary, will meet tomorrow to decide the winner of the 1931 Longwood women's invitation singles tournament.

Today Miss Palfrey eliminated from the tourney Miss Mary Greef, of Kansas City, the intercollegiate women's singles champion and a student at Stanford University, California. The score of the semi-final match was 6-4, 6-3.

A few minutes later, Miss Andrus defeated Miss Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, Cal., in the other bracket of the semi-finals by a score of 8-6, 6-1.

Thus an all-Western setup for the final round tomorrow was eliminated and an all-Eastern one substituted.

MITCHELL WINS PLAYOFF

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—(AP.)—C. Bayard Mitchell II, of Woodbury, N. J., won the playoff in the triple tie for the low score medal for amateurs in the Pennsylvania open golf championship at the Philadelphia Cricket Club yesterday, going around in 76, while Charles Reckner, Philadelphia, took 75.

BROWNS GET BENGOUGH

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 17.—(INS.)—Benny Bengough, catcher, was turned over today to the St. Louis Browns by the Milwaukee club of the American Association. The Brewers also announced the release of Garland Buckeye, left-hand pitcher.

RACE MEETING OFF

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 17.—(AP.)—There will be no fall race meeting at Churchill Downs this year. The directors yesterday decided to cancel plans for the meeting because of economic conditions.

YOUNG HEAVIES IMPRESS

NEW YORK, July 17.—(INS.)—Two rising young heavyweight stars gleamed with renewed brilliance in the fistic firmament today.

Charley Retzlaff and Steve Hamas—these will be names to conjure with in the heavyweight division during the next few years. Both looked the part of coming champions last night by easily disposing of their opponents at the Queensboro Stadium.

Retzlaff, the Minnesota knockout king, who already has been picked as a future wearer of the purple robes by Max Schmeling, made an impressive Eastern debut by scoring a technical knockout over Ralph Ficucello, sturdy Brooklyn Italian and former national amateur champion, in the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder. It was the gangling farmer boy's twenty-ninth knockout in 33 starts. Referee Gunboat Smith stopped the bout with Ficancello's left eye badly cut.

Hamas also won by a technical knockout. The victim of the former Penn State athletic star was Ted Sandwina, German-American heavyweight, who took a terrific shellacking before the referee stopped the one-sided affair in the third round. Sandwina was down for nine in the first round.

The last clash of the marathon series between the Pirates and Phillies is set for this afternoon. The battle will mark the sixth fight this week involving the two clubs, the Oaklanders having copped four in succession after losing the opening struggle.

The finale is apt to bring a slab duel between two great veterans, Big Jim Elliott, the clever left-hander, and Remy Kremer, who has been getting many of the frowns of Lady Luck this year. Elliott is leading the league with an even dozen victories, his twelfth success being recorded over Kremer on Monday in a 1-to-0 masterpiece. The Quakers scored on that occasion. Yesterday the Bucs won, 12 to 8.

BRAVES HERE TOMORROW

The Boston Braves are due to reach Pittsburgh tomorrow. Skipper Bill McKechnie and his Tribal Warriors refuse to crack and there are indications now that the Braves may force their way into the first division. The acquisition of Thirdbaseman Bill Urbanski appears to have aided the Boston team and McKechnie is getting some de luxe pitching from Brandt, Cunningham, Seibold, Zachary and others.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—There's one thing you never see in a pennant race, and that is bicycle riding. No team ever got far enough out front to put on pants clips, spring over the handlebars and go coaster-braking.

Nick Altrock

Look at both leagues today. The Cards and A's aren't more than a few strides ahead, even for a tortoise to catch up. And our Washington club, the Yanks, the Giants, Cubs and Robins aren't made of the stuff they cut up for mock turtle soup.

When you're out front you've got to worry about seven other clubs shooting arrows at the seat of your trousers, which is why the Red Sox never had nervous prostration and the A's are wearing puncture-proof underwear.

BEAVER FALLS GETS M.-A. LOOP FRANCHISE

Center Junior, Boys' Tennis Championships Are Set for Next Week

HARVEY LIKELY TO BE MADE MANAGER

Middle Atlantic League scenes shifted yesterday when the Altoona franchise was placed at Beaver Falls. The Charleroi franchise has been turned back to the league president, Elmer M. Daily.

The Altoona franchise originally was held at Jeannette. It was transferred to Altoona early in the season.

The first home game will be played at Beaver Falls on July 29 at the High School Athletic Field, which is equipped for night baseball. Ed Harvey, former manager of the Beaver Falls Elks team, will join the team within a day or two. Whether he would take over the managerial duties was not announced.

CHARLEROI QUITS

President Daily has been in Ohio for several days attempting to place the Altoona franchise at Akron. Negotiations failed there.

Reports that the Charleroi business men would continue to operate the club of that town for the remainder of the season, replacing the Charleroi Fire Department, were denied this morning. The Charleroi Fire Department gave up the franchise due to lack of interest. The franchise has been turned back to President Elmer Daily, of the Middle Atlantic League, who has taken steps to place the players elsewhere.

The business men had intended to take over the control of the team had the league authorities permitted the original forfeit of $1,500 to stand for the season. This the league refused to do and the business men abandoned their efforts to operate the team.

BOOSTER DAY CARDED

Recently, the Hagerstown, Md., franchise was taken to Youngstown, O., where only Sunday baseball is being played. Later, if conditions warrant, light may be installed for night games.

Fairmont, not unlike other towns in the circuit, is finding it hard work to make both ends meet because of the depression. It has a Booster Day program today. Three thousand fans are expected to contribute $1 each toward building up the club's finances.

The scheduled Altoona-Charleroi tilt yesterday was left unplayed because of Charleroi's action.

In other contests, Beckley won over Fairmont, 3-2, at Fairmont; Johnstown blanked Clarksburg, 7-0, at Johnstown; Huntington was whitewashed by Scottdale, 8-0, at Scottdale; Youngstown defeated Wheeling, 9-4, at Wheeling, and Cumberland humbled Charleston, 11-2, at Cumberland.

The Pirates turned in their fourth straight victory over the Phillies at Forbes Field yesterday in a free-hitting battle, 12-8. High spots of the fray appear above. With the score tied at 8-8 in the sixth inning, Jensen's throw from the outfield after catching Stevens' fly caught Friberg at the plate for the final out. In the following inning, Comorosky, pinch-hitting for Jensen, sailed a home run to the flag pole, scoring L. Waner ahead of him to win the game. Photo shows Commy crossing the plate.

Fear of having his protege go stale before his grudge battle with Buck McTiernan at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night, yesterday caused Frank Klaus, of Braddock, former middleweight champion of the world, to call a temporary halt to the training of Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock. He laid off the boxer following his run on the road in the morning.

Belmont will box again today with Carl Montebano, Buddy McArthur, Young Angelo and Tom Hansen, the amateur, and will taper off tomorrow, after which Klaus plans to take him out of town over the week-end to get him away from the excitement engendered by the battle throughout Braddock.

McTiernan drilled hard yesterday in the Salvation Army gym, downtown, boxing with Red Lyday, middleweight; Billy Holt, the Negro welterweight, and others.

All of the bouts on the card for Monday have been completed with the signing of Eddie Brannon, Negro lightweight, of the Hill, to box Eddie Edelman, an Eskimo, fighting out of Cleveland, in the eight-round semi-final. Eledman's record boasts battles with Goldie Hess and Buy Taylor. Meyer Frager, of Chicago, will box Jimmy Dontella, of Barnesboro, Pa., in the second bout, and Jack Kelly, of North Limo, O., and Carl Montebano will appear in the opener.

Between Rounds

Max Elling will meet Prince Saunders in one of the bouts at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. amateur show next Tuesday night. Mickey O'Brien and Walter Marm are paired for another clash.

Jimmy Dontella, who boxes at the Bowl Monday night, has met U. S. Carpentier twice and also has boxed Johnny Smackey, Don Frazier, Young Bordell and Young Nanci, among others.

Jimmy Thomas already is in the midst of his training for his return bout with Willie Davies, Charleroi veteran, in the windup at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night. Thomas received the referee's decision in the first meeting, some weeks ago.

A number of boxers are doing their training at Willie Davies' camp in the mountains near Bedford, but accomodations still are available there for others, according to word from Willie, who trains there throughout the summer.

Johnny Ray seconded three Negro boxers, all Jackies—Rodgers, Murray and Wilson—in bouts at Hickey Park last night and the only loser in the trio was Murray, who turned in a better battle than usual against Joey Spiegel.

WOMAN CHAMP IN TOURNEY

Mrs. Jean Artzberger, 1931 women's singles titleholder, will defend her Steel City municipal women's singles crown, as well as possession of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Challenge Cup, in the forthcoming Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh public parks net championships, slated to get under way here on the courts of Schenley, Highland, Olympia, Frick, West and Riverview parks a week from next Monday. The entry blank of Mrs. Artzberger eased in with the mail of yesterday. She will again seek preliminary honors on the Olympia lot.

Despite unfortunate showing in the national public parks women's singles at Washington, D. C., a year ago, the Pittsburgh premier ranks among leading municipal net representatives of the fair sex in the land.

Eleven entrance blanks, boosting the total list of competitors to date to 31, were delivered at the office of the Tournament Editor yesterday. Among outstanding performers in this latest batch are Alvin Silverman, clever Schenley youngster; Marjorie Artz, runner-up to Mildred Klages in the West Park women's debating a twelvemonth ago; Irwin Porter, accomplished Highland aspirant, and Mrs. Artzberger.

No entries will be received over the telephone. Mail or bring blanks to the Public Parks Tennis Tournament Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The list of latest entries:

Gertrude Breakstone, Schenley; Ruth Freckleton, Schenley; Joe Tucker, Schenley; Alvin Silverman, Schenley; Jack White, Schenley; F. Clyde Smith, West; Mrs. Jean Artzberger, Olympia; Marjorie Artz, West; Ed Huff, Highland; William Goodman, Highland; Irwin Porter, Highland.—PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

RUNYAN LEADS METRO OPEN

WEST ORANGE, N. J., July 17.—(AP.)—A western-born, slightly built professional, Paul Runyan, of the Metropolis Club, in White Plains, N. Y., shot a 70, two under par, to spreadeagle a field of 145 starters in the first round of the metropolitan open golf championship.

A putt that hung on the lip of the eighth cup accounted for the one stroke that separated Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge professional and former metropolitan and national open titleholder, from the leader.

Alone in third place was Willie MacFarlane, of Oak Ridge, defending champion. He finished with a 72 total.

LEHMAN PLAYS DON MOE

PORTLAND, Ore., July 17.—(AP.)—The defending champion, Johnny Lehman, Chicago, Dr. O. F. Willing, Don Moe and Malcolm MacNaughton, all of Portland, are playing semi-finals tilts in the Western amateur golf tournament today. Lehman is playing Moe and Willing is meeting MacNaughton.

RODGERS WINS EASILY OVER ERICKSON

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Jackie Rodgers, local Negro featherweight puncher, evened another score last night when he soundly trounced Johnny Erickson, New York Italian, in the 10-round main bout before a large crowd at Hickey Park, Millvale. Only a few weeks ago, Jackie, coming back following a layoff, knocked out Chico Cisneros, Mexican, in seven rounds in the Meyers Bowl to atone for a defeat by Cisneros in Cleveland. Last night he was out to clear the records of a decision won over him by Erickson at Hickey Park last summer and also to get even for an eye injury which he claimed was caused by one of Erickson's thumbs in that battle.

And he got even with plenty to spare. After a close opening round, he won in a romp in a battle marked in the main by body punching. He carried every round from the even first one to the finish, punched Erickson's left side a livid hue, and, on the whole, handed him a first-class shellacking. Only Erickson's ability to absorb punishment in iron-man fashion saved him from a knockout.

JACKIE LOOKS GOOD

Rodgers, always on the sending end, maintained a fast pace throughout as he kept boring in and punching with both fists, and he appeared to be in much better condition than in his return go with Cisneros, in which he fought a defensive bout for six rounds. By his exhibition he served fair warning that he is on the way back to the peak as a local attraction ready to meet all comers. He scaled 121 pounds, against 120½ for his opponent at 3 p. m.

After losing the first three rounds of the scheduled eight-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, to tall, rangy Billy Bruns, of Erie, 168¾, Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport, 167, dropped the later momentarily with a left hook in a corner at the start of the fourth and then knocked him out with a right to the jaw after 2 minutes 16 seconds of fighting in the round. Bruns did a lot of roadwork and holding even in his winning rounds and did not relish the short range punching of the willing McArthur, and, after the left hook went home early in the final round, it was only a question of how soon he would be dropped again.

SPIEGAL BEATS MURRAY

Jackie Murray, Negro, of the Hill, had two good fighting rounds against Joey Spiegal, Uniontown scuthpaw, the second and sixth, but was far outpunched in the other four and even a knockdown for a count of nine at the start of the final frame could not swing the fight his way. Spiegal rallied and was forcing the going in the closing stages. Both weighed 141.

Jackie Wilson, Homewood Negro, 122½, a greatly improved puncher, dropped Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, 123¼, for eight in the second round and nine in the third and dished out a sweet pasting throughout the six rounds of the opener.

All of the decisions in the bouts that went the limit were unanimous. Frank Ferris and Jock Simco were the judges and Norman Borland and Steve Russell the timers, with Harry Klaas the announcer, Red Robinson and Jack Henderson the referees and Dr. J. W. McMeans the commission physician.

MISS MADISON AFTER RECORD

NEW YORK, July 17.—Making her first attempt against time since her entrance into major competition this year, Helene Madison, of Seattle, greatest woman speed swimmer in the history of aquatics, will try for a new world 1,000-yard record as the stellar feature of the National A. A. U. outdoor championships here tonight.

With three national titles already to her credit in two nights, Miss Madison will seek to smash the record for 1,000 yards made by Martha Norelius, of the Women's Swimming Association, of New York, at Massapequa, L. I., in 1927.

Miss Madison easily defended her title in the 440-yard free-style event last night, and Eleanor Holm, Women's S. A., defending champion, retained her title in the 220-yard back-stroke event.

Miss Holm will defend her 300-meter medley championship tonight, and the Los Angeles relay team, national champions in the 880-yard event, will meet the teams of the Women's S. A. and the Homestead (Pa.) Library Club.

In the 440-yard test last night, Lenoire Kight, of Homestead, Pa., was second, and Josephine McKim, of Los Angeles, a former Pittsburgher, third.

The Washington Athletic Club represented only by Miss Madison, was leading in the team championship race with 15 points.

P. A. A. COURTS TO BE SCENE OF TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The annual Pittsburgh Center junior and boys' tennis championships will be staged on the three clay courts of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association the mornings of next Wednesday and Thursday. Jack Lauler, Winged Head ace, will again serve as chairman, the following committee having been delegated to assist him: J. Phillips Davis, Dr. William S. McElroy, J. D. Mattern, J. Howard Moore, William L. O'Loughlin and Paul G. Sullivan.

The center competition is not open to all comers. Each contestant must represent either a club affiliated with the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, a school which sponsors tennis as a team sport, or a community which has held a junior and boys' tournament. Proper credentials certifying date of birth and club, school, or community representation must be displayed to the center tourney chairman before aspirants will be permitted to join battle. Junior players are those who have not attained their eighteenth birthday prior to January 1, 1931; entrants in the boys' division must not have reached their fifteenth birthday before January 1, 1931.

WINNERS IN TITLE PLAY

The purpose of the center jousting is the selection of a junior and a boy champion to carry Steel City colors into the national junior and boys' championships at Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., the week of August 10. It has been the custom of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association for many years to defray the expenses of the local center junior and boys' titleholders to the nationwide conclave.

Chuck Garland lifted the junior crown in 1918 and Dave O'Loughlin bagged the boys' flagon in 1922.

ENTRIES CLOSE TUESDAY

With Aroida, the 1930 victor, now over-age, a new junior premier must be chosen. Harold Mathieson, 1930 boys' winner, however, will seek to lug off further 15-year-old laurels to Koppel, Pa. Semi-finalists in both sections of the center event will be eligible for the national championships. Entries will be received by Chairman John W. Lauler at 41 Roquet street, or Mayflower 1489. The lists will be closed at 5 p. m. on Tuesday.

PIRATES, PHILS END SERIES

nie are carded to meet in a dual bill tomorrow. The bargain attraction is likely to produce some real baseball, as the Buccos and Braves have given the league some of its best games this season.

The Buccos copped their fourth straight yesterday as they gave a display of good, bad and indifferent baseball. The best part of the Pittsburgh performance was reflected in the unusual batting of the team, the home boys nicking three Quaker pitchers for 17 hits, including a pinch homer by Adam Comorosky which won the ball game.

COMMY COMES THROUGH

The game was tied at eight all in the seventh and two were out when Woodie Jensen, Commy's rival for the leftfield job, was due to swing against the slants of Lefthander Stew Bolen. Bolen had been making some of our southpaw hitters look terrible at the plate, and Skipper Ens was wise in sending Commy out to swing for Jensen.

Commy did something better than mere swinging—he timed a Bolen offering for a four-sacker over Brickell's head with L. Waner on first. Grantham followed with a base on balls and Pie Traynor rammed a triple into the right-center pocket to put the game on the ice. The Buccos added another tally in the eighth with Recruit Fallenstein working on the slab.

MANY HURLERS

Bob Osborn and Frank Watt were the starting pitchers, but neither got along well. Swetonic relieved Osborn and Erv Brame later had to go to the relief of Steve. Bolen took the place of Watt and later came out to make room for a pinch batter.

The two clubs scored their runs in clusters. The Buccos jumped off with four markers and the enemy came up from behind with four in the second. The home batters picked up another collection of four in the fourth and the Phillies rode to another deadlock in the sixth. But Brame was their master in the closing rounds.

TIME HELD RIPE FOR REFORMS IN BUSINESS

Accounting Method Change Seen as Means to Raise Stockholder Confidence

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The depression period, which tests the character of men, also challenges the validity of institutions.

Constructive leaders should capitalize the prevailing disposition for stock taking to establish progressive reforms, which will heighten public confidence.

Mr. Rukeyser

There is too much belief that public confidence springs merely from clever propaganda, and too little appreciation of the fact that lasting faith rests on deep seated satisfaction with the serviceability of existing institutions.

TRUE ACCOUNTING

Stockholder confidence, for example, can be heightened by a new and more enlightened acceptance of better corporate accounting standards, which will reveal, rather than conceal, the true status of companies. Another way to raise confidence is to give special representation on boards of directors to the outside smaller stockholders. So-called public directors could be chosen as the spokesmen and watchdogs inside the company for scattered outsiders.

It is, perhaps, something of a subtle racket that the basic law in various states has not yet been modified to take cognizance of the rise of the small investor. Numerous eminent lawyers believe that new safeguards should be written into the law.

STOCKHOLDERS APATHETIC

Commenting on my recent proposal that outside stockholders be invited to elect at least one member to each board of directors to represent their interests, H. D. Tichenor, of Los Angeles, member of the executive committee of the Railroad Owners' Association, which purports to represent one-third of the railroad security owners in the country, pointed out:

"Our association has strongly advocated such action for several years, but you are right in criticizing the inexplicable and discouraging apathy of the great majority of outside stockholders in prosperous times, as we have found it most difficult to get them sufficiently interested and organized to fight for their rights in the matter until they are made aware of some mismanagement, or policy of the directorate of some corporation they may be shareholders of, that is detrimental to their interests."

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 17.—Grains underwent price setbacks early today, influenced by unlooked for downturns in Liverpool wheat quotations ascribed to bearish Russian advices. Reports of cooler weather and scattered showers over parts of the corn belt were also incentives to bears. Opening ¼-⅞c off, wheat later showed but little power to rally. Corn started unchanged to ¾ down and afterward held near to the initial limits.

Drop in Gasoline Price Hidden by Rise in Taxes

NEW YORK, July 17.—Gasoline prices have fallen to the lowest level in years, but the drop is hidden in the extreme increase in tax rates.

Records of the American Petroleum Institute show that on June 1 last the average gasoline tax exceeded four cents per gallon for the first time in history, while the average price of gasoline fell below 13 cents per gallon.

PARIS-LONDON MARKETS UP

PARIS, July 17.—Prices closed firm on the Bourse today, with leading shares showing substantial gains. Sentiment showed considerable improvement.

LONDON, July 17.—A firm tone prevailed on the London Stock Exchange at closing today, with all stocks registering substantial gains. Industrial shares were particularly firm.

BERLIN, July 17.—A Reichsbank statement, dated July 15 and published today, gives the bank's gold and bullion $341,523,000 and divisen (foreign exchange) $31,091,750, representing reductions of $13,916,000 and $61,655,000, respectively, as compared with the previous week. The gold and devisen coverage of paper circulation is given at 35.8 per cent, against 43.8 last week.

All leading private banks have been authorized to buy and sell foreign exchange, but will sell only in exceptional cases where there is a legitimate need for a foreign currency.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Drift | Local List Narrow

MARKET TURNS DULL, PRICES DRIFT

Brisk Rally at Opening Short Lived Despite Gains in London, Paris

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP.)—Stocks were content to bide their time today.

Financial markets in the main manifested a hopeful attitude toward the European financial crisis, but a brisk rally at the opening of the New York stock market was short lived, despite substantial gains in London and Paris. Trading turned extremely dull, and prices merely drifted. Bonds were moderately firm, and foreign exchanges regained a semblance of stability.

A few specialties in stocks made fair advances.

With domestic news still reflecting little save midsummer quiet, the stock market was without important impetus. Considerable interest was shown in Wall street banking circles over the report that the French propose a credit of $500,000,000 to the Reich, to be guaranteed by customs.

The Reichsbank's weekly statement, for the period ending July 15, bore striking testimony to the drain upon its resources. It showed a loss of some $75,000,000 in foreign exchange and gold for the week, and reduction of the reserve ratio to 35.8 per cent.

The cutting of the legal reserve from 40 to 30 per cent, therefore, does not leave any large margin of protection.

Failure of negotiations for renewal of the international nitrate sales cartel was reflected in a sharp reduction in prices of sulphate of ammonia, and cuts in other chemicals were expected. Some selling appeared in Allied Chemical stock as a result.

It was reported in the copper trade that offerings of metal at 7¾ cents had virtually disappeared, leaving a flat price of 8 cents.

The weekly mercantile reviews reiterated remarks about midsummer quiet. Retail trade, however, was believed to be holding about equal to a year ago.

Sugar Company's Plan Operative

Thad Gives Kitty a Costly String of Pearls

CHAPTER XIX.

What possible thing could Thad Parsons have to say to me?

As we walked into the foyer and took the elevator my thoughts were racing around in my head.

Not three weeks married and here he was, anxious to have a talk with me. Was he going to excuse himself for throwing me down? That was nonsense, we were never engaged.

I unlocked the door and let him in.

"Park yourself, Thad, and I'll be with you in a minute. Lift the bungalow off that China elephant's back and you'll find cigarets—make yourself right at home," I said, cheerfully.

I went into the kitchenette and from there to the bathroom to slip into another dress. There was a mammoth dress closet off the bathroom. I used a little rouge and got into my most stunning gown. Oh, I admit that I was very human and proud and I wanted to make myself as attractive as possible.

I brightened up my eyes with a dash of eye wash, put on my gayest smile and came prancing out to him.

"I had to get comfy, Thad—do smoke. Don't sit there like that; I won't bite you."

"You didn't have to doll up, Kitty—nothing you could wear would make you more beautiful than you are, naturally."

"And the great big mans came away up here to hand me a line of stale applesauce," I taunted.

THANKED FOR LETTERS

"I came to thank you," he said, suddenly, his face getting decidedly red.

"You are quite welcome." I made an old-fashioned curtsey, hand under my chin, eyelids lowered. Then I grinned at him, pushed him back in the big chair and plumped myself down on his knees.

"It is so seldom that I have such a golden opportunity to flirt with a bridegroom," I said, with a mock sigh of ecstasy.

Thad clasped his arms about me in an instant and started to kiss me. I tore away from his embrace and leaped up.

"You fool! You great big fool!" I cried angrily. "Haven't you the sense to know that I was just being jolly—just joking?"

Thad never flinched. Calmly he looked at me and nodded.

"Yes, I know that. Haven't you the sense to keep out of my arms? What do you expect?"

"I don't expect much from you—now. You were always gentlemanly but at this moment you happen to be married."

He nodded and stared moodily at me.

"What was it you wanted to talk about?" I spoke quietly, again. I felt a little sorry for him, although I was still somewhat angry.

"The letters, Kitty—I wanted to thank you."

"Thanks for nothing," I said crossly.

"Nothing?" He spoke with surprise.

"Yes, just that, 'nothing'—they didn't mean a thing to me."

I turned away, ashamed that my chagrin had brought tears to my eyes.

"Some girls—most girls—would have sent them to—to my wife," he said.

THAD EXPLAINS

"Most girls of your snobby set, not my sort—

"Didn't it occur to you that I would pay handsomely for those letters?"

"It did. I was advised to sue you for a million dollars. Since I made you a present of them you will probably admit that I didn't think much of that advice. Thanks for your thanks and now run home to the little bride——"

"Oh, lord!" Thad groaned as he said it.

"You'd better go on, Thad," I said, softly.

"Not a word of reproach from you," he half whispered, staring at me, "no bitterness, not even a question as to why I married Arline."

"Why should I make a fuss? I had no strings on you. If I was sap enough to think you meant it when you made love to me—if I was dumb enough not to wonder why you never mentioned marriage, I had it coming to me. You've said your pretty thanks, please run along. I've got to get ready for a big party tonight."

I wondered if he knew how I was fairly aching to ask him why he so suddenly married snobbish little Arline Sargent—a girl I wouldn't trust, despite her position in society, as far as I could throw a truck by the crank.

"We had too much to drink at a party down there. Arline and I got positively stewed and went down the coast in a launch. We got stuck on a sandbar and were there all night. She said I had compromised her," Thad explained.

I bit my lip. There were a hundred things I could say. My impulse was to tell him to ask her to explain about Susie Lawlor's husband, and I wanted to laugh at the idea of Arline Sargent being compromised.

I had sense enough to do none of those things.

"That was fine of you, Sir Galahad—and now run along, Thad," I managed to say.

He picked up his hat and I went to the door with him.

"Good luck, always," I cried, suddenly. I didn't mean to, and yet I meant just what I said.

Thad pressed a little package into my hand.

"A remembrance, Katie—and God bless you," he said, hoarsely.

A BEAUTIFUL GIFT

He slipped out and closed the door after him.

I stood still for a while, thinking.

Everything was all right. I wasn't heartbroken at all. I felt that I knew my ground then and understood the whole situation. I had never really loved Thad, but I had loved his wealth and position. I forgot the little package for a moment and then I took it to the window to open it.

There was a pin-seal case and a little diamond fastener. I pressed it. The long narrow lid popped up.

I stared down in breathless amazement.

Pearls!

A necklace, matched, delicate shell pink, and they glistened and glowed with such iridescent beauty that it made me gasp.

I put them on.

I touched one of them. My eyes suddenly filled with tears. Thad had loved me, even if I had merely loved his wealth.

"Pearls mean tears," I muttered.

Then I laughed.

Such a silly superstition!

"No more tears for me," I cried.

I remember this brief little soliloquy of mine many and many a time after this.

Chubb and Viola both declared that I was unusually quiet that evening. I passed it off by claiming that I had a slight headache. That night I told Viola all about Thad's visit. I showed her the pearls.

"Tears," she said, and shrugged her shoulders.

Things went along as usual after this, with plenty of gay parties. I had other friends, men I met with Chubb. I went here and there with some of them, but Chubb went about with me most of the time.

SEES ARLINE

We were preparing for another fashion show. The Miers were planning big things and spread themselves this time. Five of the Miers dress models — we never called ourselves "mannequins"—were to take part in this big display, including Viola and myself.

It was a bigger affair than before. Two French houses had agents over with a display. Cameramen were there for the rotogravure sections and news reels. I had my picture taken in a black velvet gown that was little more than a broad ribbon above the waist, and I wore the pearls Thad had given me.

I also had a picture taken with Viola in the newest bathing suit. All of these were taken before the opening, so as to be printed and create wider interest in the exhibition.

We had a stifling mob there the first afternoon and evening.

In the crowd around 10 o'clock I spied Forrest Malvern and his gay little widow, Fanny Dutton. He saw me and waved, but of course I had to be dignified; I couldn't return his salute, and he knew it.

As I was making a solo trip down the runway and back in the breath-taking decollete black velvet, I heard someone say, "Oh, Curt—get that for me."

"Sure—and all the rest, if you want 'em," he answered.

I looked down at them then.

They recognized me.

I stopped as if to arrange a fold in the dress and said to them so that they could hear me:

"Hello, Thad's wife and Susie's husband!"

Arline turned away; I heard her call me an odious name.

Synopsis

To just play around, always to have a gay time, is all that is worth while in life, according to the belief of beautiful Katherine Mason, a dress model who has jilted her poor lover, Peter Thompson, in the assurance that wealthy and aristocratic Thad Parsons will marry her. He gives her every reason to believe this. She turns down Forrest Malvern, a rich man of 40, who was once the "sugar daddy" of her friend, Dolly Hawkins, who disappeared. Katherine's roommate finds her in tears, a newspaper crushed in her hands. Kitty had just read about Thad marrying Arline Sargent. Viola urges Kitty to sue him for breach of promise. Kitty refuses. Chubb Osmund, a friend of Thad, asks Kitty to marry him. To ward him off she says she must have time to consider. Thad returns and says he must talk with Kitty.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Reporter's Novel Accepted By Film Company

Good Old Plot

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

"I feel a story coming on," Mortimer Jordan said.

Mortimer was a cub reporter on the Evening Tocsin and had recently joined the Press Club.

Since so many druggists, politicians, actors and merchants were members of the Press Club they couldn't very well hold out on Mortimer, even though he had been a reporter only six months, and mostly a leg man at that.

No one seemed to be at all impressed by Mortimer's remark.

"Yes, sir, I sure feel a story coming on," Mortimer repeated.

"The safest way is to get drunk and forget about it," Dane Todd suggested, mildly. Todd was an editorial writer and had three novels to his credit, or discredit, depending on how one rated the slushy and sexy type of novel.

"Why should I forget about it? There's money in a good story," Mortimer insisted.

"Where," asked Roy Browning, "are you going to get a good story?"

Mortimer tapped his forehead.

Five of the six men laughed raucously. The sixth man did not laugh, because he hadn't seen Mortimer's gesture.

It occurred to him that they were trying to rag him. He asked himself where they got off to rag him, not many of the members had ever written a real story, probably half of the members had never written anything for print.

Mortimer met Isobel Howard on his way up street. Isobel had a woman's column in the Evening Tocsin. They stopped to chat. Isobel liked Mortimer because he was still young and dashing and hadn't taken on the pessimism of the hardened reporter.

WAVES GOODBYE

"Where away, Mort?" Isobel asked.

"I hie me to my typewriter, fair maiden," he answered, with a cheerful grin.

"Something for tomorrow?"

"No, something for posterity—I have an inspiration. I am going to write a story."

"Why Mort—really? I didn't know you wrote stories. What magazine is this for?"

"Haven't decided which magazine I'll let have it—see you in a couple anons."

Mortimer waved an adieu and went his way. Isobel watched him and smiled. She knew, in a way, just how Mortimer felt. Isobel had often felt a burning desire to sit right down and hammer out the great American novel. Most of the time she had other things to do, data to look up for her woman's column, a woman's club meeting to attend, a fashion show or something else quite as important—to her column. Occasionally she had started her novel but she had never got beyond the stage of making a skeleton of half a plot and then being stuck for the anti-climax and the climax.

Mortimer Jordan did go to the pleasant room he occupied in his aunt's spacious suburban home and he did set himself down to his portable and do some pondering.

Then he did some floor pacing.

WRITES OUTLINE

After that he opened the Evening Tocsin and glanced at the sporting news. He had merely looked through it for the few items he had written when a copy came to his desk at press time.

There was Radio, in the third race—Mortimer had been given a hot tip on Radio.

Radio had won!

Mortimer was greatly pleased, in fact he was pleased $7 worth, the amount he had won over and above the amount he had staked. He would collect that in the morning from Barnsie, the "Horse Editor," who placed bets for the boys with a certain reliable bookie. The seven bucks would pay for a nice new straw hat and tomorrow was the fifteenth, when straw hats would be "ripe."

Suppose he had had a couple thousand dollars and put it on Radio—he would have been $14,000 to the good! That would mean a car, a trip to Europe and plenty of fun.

Mortimer dashed for his typewriter and wrote:

"Southern plantation mortgaged—to be sold next week—colonel sick—daughter sold almost all except Stonewall, a racing horse—daughter enters horse in race—sweepstakes—costs so much she can't hire jockey—dresses as jockey and rides horse and wins—saves home—wealthy society man, owner of stable—wants to buy Stonewall—girl won't sell—rich man falls in love with her—marries her."

Mortimer sat back, yanked the paper out of the typewriter and read this over three times.

Then he began to write out names for his characters.

By midnight he had the first chapter finished.

The next day he told Isobel about his story.

"I hope to hear that you make a big hit with it, Mortimer," Isobel said, keeping a straight face.

At the Press Club they were not so tender with him.

Naturally Mortimer was anxious to talk about his "novel."

"You thought I was kidding yesterday, didn't you?" he said to Dane Todd.

"No—I suppose the novel's written now."

"Be your age, Todd—but I've got the plot all worked out and the first chapter written—corking fine novel—great and original idea. It's about a horse."

"Tut—tut, won't do," Roy Browning said, gravely.

"I'd like to know why not!"

"Someone," said Roy, "has written a story about a horse."

"Not like this one—this is an original story," Mortimer insisted.

"Yeah?" said Dane Todd, "Original plot, eh? Nay, me lad, all of the original plots have been written."

"Not this one. It's about a Southern girl going to lose her home, and rides her horse and wins, and saves home and——"

"Sa-a-ay!" yelled Dane Todd, with a perfectly straight face, "I apologize—that is a corker!"

Mortimer smoothed back his hair and swelled up a little.

"Good old plot," Roy agreed.

"What do you mean, good old plot?" Mortimer demanded.

"Yes," Dane Todd yelled at Roy, "what do you mean—this is sure one swell and original plot if there ever was one."

"Sure—sure—that is what I meant," Roy agreed, and to make up for his slip he shook hands with Mortimer. "The publishers will be fighting for it. Sell it to a big magazine first, get your serial money, then put it in a book."

"Thanks for the tip, I'm not worrying about selling it," Mortimer assured him. "Got to hustle back and do two chapters tonight."

ASSOCIATES LAUGH

They had a great laugh over Mortimer's "original plot." Barnsie dropped in and they told him.

"On the level, He was kidding you, no one could be serious about that," Barnsie said.

But they knew better. Mortimer was decidedly serious, and he was at that moment hammering out the chapter about the letter from the bank calling attention to the heartbreaking fact that the mortgage could not be carried another month.

Isobel felt rather sorry for Mortimer. He didn't seem to mind their kidding him. He confided in her that the boys were jealous of his genius.

Isobel wished that she had the nerve to explain it to him, because she was really getting fond of Mortimer, ego and all.

Over at the club, whenever Mortimer dropped in someone would gravely ask him how his great novel was coming on.

He would tell them, in all seriousness.

It took him 15 minutes to describe to Todd and Browning how he was writing the chapter about the race, about how Radio (he named his horse Radio) got away at a poor start, and how the southern girl, dressed as a jockey, whispered in Radio's ear that he had to win to save dear old Palmetto Terrace, the name of her ancestral home.

"I got Barnsie to give me some horse lingo for the paddock stuff," Mortimer said, "great, what?"

"Very good," Todd said, gravely, "ve-ry good. Out of the 819,000 stories written about a girl riding her horse to win and save the old home, this is the best."

"Yeah? Trifle jealous, aren't you, Todd? Wished you had thought of such a plot yourself, what?"

Todd turned to Roy with a sad countenance.

"This kid is a wonder! He reads your mind," he said.

Roy nodded and then left the room suddenly, where he could let go a big chunk of laughter.

SIGNS CONTRACT

Finally Mortimer had his novel finished. He began to look around for a market. He had to be careful.

At this time he chanced to read an article in a writer's magazine, an advertisement, in fact, from an agency, setting forth the big prices paid for picture rights to a good story.

He selected a standard production company, a big one, he sent along his novel, with a letter on the Evening Tocsin letter-head.

* * *

In the scenario editor's room Gross Allston was rummaging through scripts. He was a director. He had made a big success directing "Purple Sunrise." He chanced on the script titled, "Radio Rides Home." He read it and went in to the Big Boss, Allston's stock was high then. He had directed a picture that had made much money, so he was heard with respect.

"It's a great vehicle, a great story," Allston declared.

Mortimer Jordan received word to go to the Eastern office and sign a contract and accept a check.

It was a mighty good check, in five figures. Mortimer had hung back—he wasn't anxious to sell, he said, he had been advised to let a certain publisher have it. That was how he got the good price for it.

He showed the check to some thirty of his acquaintances and then banked it.

They wanted to get him into a poker game at the club, because he looked like good picking.

"Can't do it; got an important errand," he said. "Got to go with Isobel while she picks out an engagement ring."

Dane Todd stared at Roy Browning. Roy stared back at him.

"Roy," Todd said, "you were right—you were damn right—it was sure a good old plot!"

Taxation Partiality

Charge That Favoritism Is Shown in Assessments Is Not to be Taken Lightly.

P. J. Fallon, Wilkins Township assessor, was asked by C. E. Brandfass, township commissioner, at a taxpayers' meeting Wednesday night if County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong had not ordered a reduction in the assessed property valuation of the Edgewood Country Club after a testimonial dinner in his honor. The assessor answered by reciting a poem in praise of Armstrong.

In view of the poem, we do not know how seriously it was intended that the matter should be taken. It was an ugly insinuation, and unless intended as a jest is not to be dismissed lightly.

Armstrong is expected to be a candidate for another term as county commissioner, and the charge of favoritism has a direct bearing on his fitness for the office.

William N. McNair asserted at the Wilkins Township meeting that half a dozen large estates in the township were shamefully underassessed, the figures representing only about one-tenth of the value.

That is a matter of interest not only to the people of Wilkins Township but to all the taxpayers of Allegheny County, for partiality extended to some increases the tax burden of the others.

Voting Machine Bells

Senate Committee's Trip Was Worth While If Only Because It Revealed the Deficiency.

It remains to be seen if the Poole Machine Company will deliver by August 15, as originally promised, the 1,100 voting machines ordered by Allegheny County. No definite assurance could be obtained by the Senate investigating committee which visited the company's plant at Baltimore this week that all the machines would be on hand at the appointed time.

The outlook appeared none too bright, for while a number of machines were seen in progress of construction only one completed machine was visible. It seems, therefore, that the County Commissioners were wise in arranging for a supply of paper ballots for use in the September primary.

The senators' trip to Baltimore would have been worth while if it had done no more than to reveal that the machines were being set up without the bells recording the votes which were an important attachment of the model approved by the Commonwealth.

The company declares it was ordered to omit the bells from the machines, but none of the officials mentioned as the source of the instructions will admit having issued them. It would be interesting to know where the responsibility lies.

The bells ring when votes are recorded. Without the bells, as Senator Frank J. Harris points out, it would be possible for dishonest election boards to record votes noiselessly after the polls were closed.

It is fortunate that the omission of the bells was detected, and gratifying that Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish has insisted so promptly that the machines be equipped with them.

The Reservoir Tragedy

It Is Another Example of the Importance of Having Railings Strong Enough to Hold Autos.

The tragedy at Highland Park Reservoir yesterday in which a car occupied by a man and his wife plunged through the railing into the water, with the resultant death of both by drowning, brings to mind other automobile fatalities due to the weakness of guard rails. There was, for example, the case of the car which crashed through a railing on the Boulevard of the Allies and fell a considerable distance into Second avenue.

The Highland Reservoir case is different in that it could hardly have been expected that an automobile would ever run into the railing, and no blame can be attached to the city for not having made it strong enough to keep a car from crashing through.

The affair suggests, nevertheless, that even at places where the railing is designed only to protect pedestrians it should be made sufficiently sturdy to hold cars back, too, if there is the slightest danger of machines running into it.

Under Fire Again

Honorable Electrical Contractors Would Do Well to Clear Themselves of Suspicion.

Unpleasant things are again being said about some of the electrical contractors of Pittsburgh.

The Board of Public Education had disagreeable experiences in contracting for electrical work for the Taylor Allderdice High School. The board virtually charged some of the contractors with being in a conspiracy to mulct the public by joining together in excessive bids for public work.

There was talk in the county commissioners' office, in connection with the letting of a contract for electrical equipment for the new City-County Airport, to the effect that some branches of the electrical contracting business were conducted in such a way as to make it a "racket." Commissioner McGovern's questions indicated strong suspicion that things were not what they should be.

Honorable electrical contractors would do well to clear themselves of suspicion and fix the responsibility for the suspicious circumstances where it belongs.

Don't Forget Dobbin

Fido Should Not Be Allowed to Go Thirsty, Either, During the Hot Spell.

A South Side man is in trouble for forgetting to return a rented saddle horse. He tied it to a tree in South Park and left it there for three days.

Few persons could be capable of such forgetfulness as this man confesses, but many are not as thoughtful as they might be of the comfort of animals.

It is cruelty to forget to give old Dobbin—and Fido, too—plenty of water during the hot spell.

In the old saloon days there were plenty of watering troughs, and horses and dogs were not so liable to suffer from thirst. Prohibition and automobiles have done away with some of the troughs; so it is up to kindhearted persons to supply the animals with water in buckets.

In these bootleg days it is "Yo Ho Ho, and several MILLION bottles of rum, also gin, brandy, wood alcohol, varnish and hair tonic."

But——

Revenons a nos moutons.

When a beautiful girl, with pearls, is walking the plank, words are superfluous.

The hero, sitting on the little craft, is what scientists call "Homo Boobus," and yet there is logic in his remark. How can he save anybody unless somebody saves him?

And we are all so busy now saving Germany, Mesopotamia, Austria, Beluchistan, Timbuctoo, and points East.

However, we can hope for the best. That's in the Constitution.

That battleship in the distance looks hopeful. But don't rely on it.

Before you can get 36 states to vote to take Prohibition out of the Constitution, and it can't come out unless they DO vote, you will have whiskers longer than the Seven Sutherland Sisters' hair.

Chesterfield's Descendant

Surprise and Horror for the Ancient Dilettante.

LORD CHESTERFIELD MEETS HIS DESCENDANT. HORRORS!

With this excellent picture, by Will Dyson, the London Graphic illustrates cleverly the difference between this day and an earlier day.

You are familiar with the letters that Lord Chesterfield wrote to his son, long ago, an illegitimate son, by the way.

Lord Chesterfield wrote the letters, partly to give the son what he considered good advice, but chiefly to show how brilliantly he could write and think, and to produce a batch of letters that would outlast his lifetime.

He was successful in that nearly everybody that reads at all reads some of Chesterfield's letters to his son.

This picture illustrates the difference that Lord Chesterfield would detect in his great-great-great-grandson, if Lord Chesterfield could come back and see our generation.

In the picture, the descendant of 1931 is supposed to be saying to his more or less "revered" ancestor:

"As for your Letters to a Son, great-great (and so forth) grandad, it'd get you in wrong with all our crowd nowadays, if they ever read them. A winner in its day, I daresay, but a non-runner in mine."

You know only too well that as the Chesterfield descendant says: "Being a gentleman isn't done by the young, you know." Being a lady isn't done any too much by the young either, unfortunately.

SLANG, in place of conversation, cocktail drinking, and cocktail manners, in place of good behavior, and other things even more unpleasant, might be found by Chesterfield among his descendants, if he could come back.

However, all of this, undoubtedly, is offset by better qualities of other kinds.

What would be our surprise if we could come back and see our descendants, not one or two hundred years from now, but 500,000 or 1,000,000 years from now?

We know, for science proves it, that this earth will last hundreds of millions of years.

We know that we, as we stand, and as our brains work, are the products of a slow development, changing through the centuries, a development that scientists, right or wrong, call "evolution."

We know that our ancestors lived in caves, fought the mammoth, had long teeth and hairy bodies.

We know that we are only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age, when man's only weapons were sharp flints, fastened to the ends of sticks, and, perhaps, bows and arrows.

We have changed greatly since our ancestors hunted the mammoth, and fled from the giant bears. Our chins have gone back, our jaws are smaller, our teeth are shorter, our foreheads are higher.

What changes, more remarkable, should we see, if we could come back in 1,000,000 years, or even in 50,000 years?

What would then be left of the bodies that we carry around with us?

Should we find our descendants nearly ALL HEADS, with very little body?

Should we, perhaps, find our daughters, of a few thousand centuries hence, fully developed, fine girls, and our sons, with no work harder than pushing a button, diminutive beings, carried around by their wives in a little gold mesh basket, only taken out to be fed, and on state occasions?

Nobody knows what we shall be like. But one thing is certain, "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be," and if you could see your descendants, a million years hence, you would be a million times more surprised than old Lord Chesterfield would be, if he could see his descendants, and watch their manners, of today.

Points for Modern Romeos

A lot of books have recently appeared on such subjects as "The Art of Love," and "Technique of the Love Affair," but they must have been read chiefly by women. The men do not seem to have digested their contents.

* * *

Lovemaking is one of the fine arts. But, alas, the artists are few, and the artisans are many.

* * *

Few men are born Great Lovers. Yet, every man seems to think that he can win the amateur championship without even studying the rudiments of the game these days. The modern Romeo boasts of his "technique," but his practical demonstration is not always up to the broadcast.

The average man would give his right hand or his best set of golf clubs to have an irresistible way and a fool-proof system with women. Yet, all he need do, in order to acquire these, would be to stop, look and listen!

* * *

To study each woman at least as much as he studies his looking glass, and to understand her as well, and treat her as tenderly as he treats his sport car. To refrain from starring himself, and begin starring the GIRL.

* * *

To learn that the "I'll-take-care-of-you, y o u-precious-little-thing" manner is far more effective than the "Look-who's-here, you-lucky-little-woman" manner.

* * *

It takes TIME—but so does all art. After all, every man has his mission in life; and there is something to be said for the man whose only mission has been to put a brief glamor of romance into the lives of a lot of women.

* * *

Every now and then you read of one of these super-artists who has wooed, mulcted and deserted one woman after another. But, what if he DID help himself to their jewels and cash balances. Wasn't it worth it to any woman to be made love to properly and romantically, at least once?

* * *

Just a little tenderness, a little delicacy, a little ardent but restrained devotion would be manna from heaven to many a girl.

* * *

That was the charm of the old-fashioned lover. He knew WOMEN! He knew the value of the old waiting game, the protecting manner, the adoring approach.

He could say more with a look, a gesture, an unfinished sentence, than a modern Romeo can say with $40 worth of gasoline and gin.

* * *

No matter how light his love, he was always enough of the artist to make it SEEM serious.

* * *

He was so convincing that he almost convinced himself that the woman he happened to be kissing at the moment was "the only girl in the world!"

* * *

Brotherly love is all right in its place, but even the most ardent feminine can't extract much "kick" out of a casual pat on the back and a "Give-us-a-kiss-old girl" sort of tenderness.

* * *

What the modern grab-as-grab-can, kiss-as-kiss-will, pet-as-you-go Romeo seems to have forgotten is that lovemaking, in order to be effective, should have at least one-half-of-one-per-cent LOVE in it.

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LE HAVRE, July 17.—We fluttered—after six days at sea one does flutter—down the gangplank today to that sullen, black-rocked and gray weathered coast that is Normandy. Beyond are the coiling streams, milky highways, splendorous sun and bursting blooms, but the port of Le Havre expresses the Miserere of the sea.

There is a gay spontaneity about a ship landing. Aloofness melts into a sudden friendliness. Most of us have in a twinkle become foreigners in a strange land. We exchange the familiarities of old comrades. On the bridge stood the stalwart and caped captain who piloted us across.

So we all waved to him, too, and one wag impertinently yelled: "Keep kissable! Frenchy!" Le Havre is a bustling center where deep-water vessels discharge their cargoes into river and canal boats for inland cities. The rain-washed quays are a colorful tangle of rigging, masts, sea and fisher folk.

In the vivifying ozone are scents of tar, fresh fish, hides and pine shipping boxes. The city itself is a clump o slate gray stone buildings, slit by narrow streets that breathe their medievalism and relieved only here and there by the open markets and public drinking fountains.

A group of us took a decrepit old barouche to drive along the quay in the morning drizzle. The cobbled streets are deep rutted with age and we had to grip each other to keep from toppling out. In every doorway gnarled old women sat working — carding wool, knitting and the like.

From coast to coast there is always that first impression of France — indefatigable industry. The men of Normandy are short, stocky, generally blue bloused and given to fierce foot-long mustaches. They pedal bicycles madly wherever they go with jugs of wine strapped to handle bars.

Perhaps the happiest of all to land was Billy. He rarely shows emotion but all the way down the gangplank he yipped, stopped at intervals to roll and jump up and down on strangers. He has been here many times and with dog instinct knows he has lots of fun in France.

* * *

The boat trains, like match boxes on wheels, were chugging under the sheds and many rushed into them to hang out the windows. But most of us walked up and down alongside in an effort to find our land legs. Ray Long, Jr., seemed especially impressed with the chunky Normandy dray horses with jingling bells on their collars and bright ribbon bows in their manes. Also with carts pulled with panting dogs underneath.

* * *

French trains start with the decision of a time lock on a bank vault. A second before train time a hand bell is rung and the next second it is jerking and tooting comically along. I saw three frightened passengers rushing for ours too late. They will arrive in Paris seven hours hence.

* * *

Out in the mistral of Le Havre we plunged through the curtain of fog into the bright sunshine of the Normandy countryside and, swiping the title of Gene Markey's book, are on the road to Rouen. The canvas before our eyes is unchanged but ever beautiful. The narrow Seine slithers and glimmers now and then before us. Nestling in the wet green of blooming orchards are chateaux breathing the warmth of vivid coloring. Peasants in sabots look up from fields as trains and automobiles tear by. Yonder is jasmine, linden and oleander whisperingly fragrant. Above a fling of fluffy blue that startles with its beauty and my wife sitting opposite in the train discovers that I forgot to comb my hair. Bringing me with a lurch to reality.

* * *

For a few moments we stopped at quaint and tiny Honfleur flashing in the sun and punctuated with exclamation - point - like Gothic spires. There on a station truck sat a traveler awaiting his train. Looking up from his newspaper he bowed. He is the watch repairer in a Madison avenue jewelry shop. Small world, etc. And love to Aunt Sophie.

* * *

Out the window we pass a mossy old millwheel creaking with its eternal drip. Bright signs stipple the wayside: "See Egypt!," "Pernod," "Mumm's Cordon Rouge" and "Cognac Bisquit." In the valley a sudden gusty Norman rain splatters through the sunshine. The train conductor takes your tickets, gurgles over your two franc pourbois and retires with a profusion of bows. Out of a strip of forest a priest emerges on a lady's bicycle with robe skirts flying. An ox-drawn load of hay plods lazily. Grapes bursting with the golden touch of the sun. Tall thin trees. Patchwork of gardens. This is the France that welcomes you—and always draws you back.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Every day there comes an indignant query like that. Whereupon, I wearily wonder just which letter out of the daily scores is the one in question. Each one of those communications is carefully answered—when possible. But often the writer, himself, has made an answer impossible. He had much to tell. He had filled many pages with his sneers, sobs, whines, wails and roars. But he has been so consumed with his own wrath or self pity that he couldn't bother to present his case so that the reader might understand.

He has chosen a faint pencil or a leaky pen. He has written in haste or hysteria. As a consequence, the writing is vague and blurred, or jumbled and blotted. Or composed with such hifalutin' curlycues that no busy worker could find time to decipher it. And the name and address—so important to him—are quite illegible.

So his letter wasn't answered. And somewhere he, and hundreds like him, goes around nursing a grouch because he was "neglected" . . . "didn't have any luck, as usual."

Are YOU, perhaps, one of those hundreds?

Are YOU indignant because your letter isn't answered . . . that terribly important letter you wrote, not to me, but to Life?

Ever since you began to think about yourself and your lot you have been writing that letter to Life. You have not taken your "pen in hand" but you have taken your PERSONALITY in hand and—through your mannerism, attitudes, habits, remarks and personal appearance—you present your case as surely as though you wrote with pen and ink.

And how is that problem presented to the world which is to judge and answer? What sort of a "letter" do people read as they see you, listen to you, in your daily life?

Do you think about your problem honestly and bravely, and state it clearly and simply? Or do you ramble aimlessly along, soggy with self pity—expecting the world to give you a lot of sweet kisses just because you're sorry for yourself?

Or is your letter so blotted with anger, resentment and suspicion that it has neither dignity nor meaning? Or so filled with elaborate curlycues of conceit and affection that no one can take time to bother with it?

Every day you write a letter to Life. Your success or failure depends upon Life's answer to that letter. Every day, all the other people on earth are doing the same thing.

Some of those letters will be read with respect and sympathy, answered promptly, helpfully.

Some of them will be dropped into the waste basket because it will be impossible to answer them.

What will happen to YOUR letter?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Wind From the Sea

Tonight the wind is from the sea
And bears the tang of salt to me.
Just here, the honeysuckle grows,
And there the trellis with the rose
Stands close beside the garden gate
To tempt the passer with its freight
Of wine-sweet, petaled loveliness;
The daisies in their snowy dress
Along the pathways nod and bend
As gracious women greet a friend.

Yet when the wind is from the sea
It brings strange messages to me;
I feel, within, a sudden need
Of stinging spray and drifting weed,
Of sea-weed red as any rose
Tossed lightly where the strong tide flows.
Ah, I would know the press and surge
Of ocean in its restless urge!
Tonight the wind is from the sea;
What can the roses say to me?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

Why not a few words of praise for the man working for you when he does something worthy of commendation?

It should not be hard for you to do this.

It means much to the one thus appreciated.

The person who is making honest endeavor to fulfill every requirement of the position he holds, often wonders if his efforts are recognized by the powers that be.

Since no comments are made he may convince himself that his work is satisfactory, but he would like to get a compliment once in a while, if deserved.

Some think an adult should not expect recognition for doing plain duty.

To an extent this is true, but the rugged path would seem smoother if a favorable word could be heard now and then.

Even the biggest men—those occupying important positions—thaw out a bit and warm up to praise from those whose opinion they value.

It is natural to desire to do something worthy of favorable comment.

There is too much complaining and too little credit given for what is well done.

The course that most of us have to travel is not an easy one.

There are a lot of hard knocks along the way; they might be softened by those who have the power to do so.
